

Kaley Stapleton Reed

6 Tage

I can't get my kid to poop in the potty to save my life. Will it just eventually happen?! I've tried rewards and nothing seems to work or motivate them to want to. And it doesn't seem to bother them pooping in underwear either.

Sonya Wilson

Once I had my kids clean their own poop out of their underwear they learnt quickly that going on the toilet was much better.

6 Tage

Antworten

Bearbeitet

Alissa Koontz

15. Februar

Can anybody recommend a good potty chair that boys don't pee over the top? That little piece always seems to be too short

Richard Murray

The simple Fisher-Price ones have always been good. Try having him sit with his elbows on his knees. If that doesn't work, he might have to stand on a stepstool at the big people's toilet with his hands on the top of the raised toilet seat.

6 Wo.

Antworten

Kevin Kal

4. Februar

I'm looking for dads to give me advice on potty training for my son. I'm a single dad and need help on this. Anyone in the same boat? Thanks

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

30. Januar

Potty training consultant Pro Tip: the first 3-5 days (sometimes more...) stop talking about the potty! Stop asking them if they need to pee, stop telling them they need to pee at the signs. Wait till you see pee or poop. You can't teach a child to eat with a spoon with no food. ...you can't teach potty training without pee or poop.

Have set sits, before food and snack and before and after sleeps and quiet times, .005 second butt touch is all full win. Then treat your day as normal. Wait for a teachable moment then guide. Its that simple.

Get your littles head out of the toilet!!! The potty should be such a small part of thier day. Not thier world.

Betsy Sotelo

22. Dezember 2025

.

hi everyone, how can I potty train with these? my son just turned 3 hes autistic, but can try to talk. not so much ask for help but in hoping he can say poopy or potty, something along those terms

Tiana Riley

With my son I just used regular underwear and sent him every half hr. In 3 weeks he was going on his own

14 Wo.

Antworten

Carley Gonzales

7. Dezember 2025

.

We have been potty training my 2.5 year old for about 2 weeks...he will pee and poop on the potty, but will not initiate himself. Now at home he is refusing to go sit on the potty and it turns into a power struggle. At daycare, he has had multiple accidents per day, but seems un bothered, and won't say anything. Is this an appropriate time to take a break and do a reset? And start again in a couple weeks?

Anonymes Mitglied

23. November 2025

.

Hello everyone, I am trying for the second time to potty train my almost 3 1/2 year old. We have 9 days in a row where we have open for potty training. We are on day 2 and we have not had one successful potty in the potty yet. We have tried potty watch, potty chart, our own fun drawer to pick out our own undies, prize basket, reading books, watching potty training shows. I am at a loss and in need of other ideas. Please help a Mama out. 🙏❤️

Krista Hanes

Take his pants off and let him go naked for a few days. There will be accidents. But after about 3 days it should be done! Poops take a bit longer but pees will be making it into the potty

18 Wo.

Antworten

Jessica Lynn Kinner

26. September 2025

.

How to get him to poop consistently?

My three year old (as of August 17) started potty training in June and he has pee down, even wakes up most nights to go pee, but he cannot consistently poop on the potty. He will have some days that he just goes to the bathroom to poop, or sometimes he tells us. But id say 90 percent of the time, he just poops in his underwear I've thrown away so many pairs of underwear in the last few months that I regret stopping diapers at this cost 🤦🏻 he doesn't tell you hes pooped, he lies about it if you ask, and he just doesn't seem to care if he sits in his own poop. I've tried everything I can think of (naked method, loose clothing method, prizes, stickers) just nothing works and im at my wits end

Also, he doesn't hide or even show signs hes about to poop. Just all of a sudden you see or smell it. I need help I want him to succeed cuz he loves wearing his undies

Anonymes Mitglied 744

I'm in the same boat with my 3yo. It's a struggle!

No advice but hoping if I comment someone with good advice will chime in. 😂

We've got this! 💪

23 Wo.

Antworten

Heather Elizabeth Freer

26. September 2025

.

Alright I need yall helps my son he is 4 is wetting the bed at night I know it comes with time but I'm worrying about the mattress I don't wanna ruin the mattress it is brand new and would like for it to last what are we doing and using ?

Rose Quinn

I use a rubber fitted sheet under the regular one with a second set available. I also LOVE my shampooer!

27 Wo.

Antworten

DelightfulFish484

27. August 2025

This is going to be long and could be confusing so please ask questions but be nice please! I am stumped and don't know what to do! My son is 4.5 (5 in December) and he has been potty trained however he will hold his poo until it hurts and he screams and it's the size of an apple. I have taken him to the doctor and they recommended MiraLAX (17g once a day) and a probiotic daily. I have been doing this and he has pooped on himself at pre-k and they just keep saying we can't do this anymore. He either tells me that he doesn't feel it or he doesn't want to quit playing. He knows he is supposed to use the potty but just doesn't. He doesn't have pee accidents because I will make him go multiple times a day but he will go to the potty on his own. I am stumped if it's a feeling issue or if he is being stubborn, any advice and recommendations are so greatly appreciated! This is child number 5 and I have not encountered this before! 🙏

Empoweringmomsdaily

Oh mama, I can only imagine how overwhelmed and heartbroken you must feel watching him go through this 💔 You're doing everything you can—and it shows in how much you care and how hard you're trying to help him. Please know you're not alone.

💛 The way you've ruled out medical concerns and stayed consistent with what the doctor recommended is a huge win. That takes strength.

🔥 Here's the truth: It's not always about knowing what to do—it's about feeling safe enough to do it.

✅ Because when kids associate pooping with pain or pressure, their bodies go into "protection mode" and hold it in—even when they know they need to go.

❤️ Which means to you... this isn't stubbornness. It's a nervous system response that makes him feel like not going is safer than going.

💡 What that really means is... he doesn't need more reminders. He needs a reset—something that helps him feel like his body isn't the enemy and that he's not failing.

📖 And the reason I say that is... inside our "Regression Rescue" section, we walk through exactly how to undo the fear + pressure loop that keeps poop problems stuck. It includes scripts, reset routines, and even caregiver guides to keep everyone consistent—without shame or power struggles.

You can go to our page and see a free video that shows 3 secrets that help with this. They're the foundation for any potty training obstacle—especially when emotional triggers like this show up. 💛

31 Wo.

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

22. August 2025

.

Guys help, what do I do?

My LO turned 3 at the beginning of June. We enrolled him in a pre-k 3 class that requires him to be fully potty trained.

He has minimal accidents at home. Sometimes when we are out of the house (especially all day) he will have an accident. It seems he's not super comfy with using bathrooms outside of the house.

Well, he's gone to school 3 days now and has had an accident each day. The teacher today mentioned he may not be ready for school yet and I'm feeling pretty defeated.

My kid is incredibly smart, and super social, and he's LOVING school. He says the potty is scary though. I'm not sure how to go about this. I also don't know if it's fair for his teacher to be making comments suggesting to unenroll him after 3 days?

I also do not want school to become negative because of potty training. I want him to stay positive and keep his love for learning. Help? Advice?

Another question, what is considered "fully potty trained"? I know some older kids still have accidents so when and how do you consider a kid fully potty trained?

Christina Donlon

9. August 2025

.

Hi! Just joined the group. I have an almost 17 month old boy and want some info/advice. He's my first and when it comes to potty training we're pretty overwhelmed by the process.

When should we start?

Is he too young to go #2 in the toilet? He almost always goes first thing when he wakes up so I know when I would need to get him on the toilet.

We let him run around without pants or a diaper a lot (no reason why we just do lol) but will this hinder his potty training? He does have accidents and we just clean them up, which he likes to help with the cleaning.

Thanks! Any advice is appreciated.

Empowermomsdaily

First—welcome! 🧡 You're already ahead by noticing his bathroom patterns and letting him explore without pressure. That curiosity (and the fact that he's helping clean up) shows he's building body awareness, which is a huge first step.

Because at 17 months, it's not about "training" yet—it's about planting seeds.

Which means to you... you can start introducing the potty as a normal part of life without expecting full independence right away.

And what that really means is... when he's ready, it won't feel like a big, scary change—just the next natural step.

And the reason I say that is because toddlers who see the potty as familiar and safe often transition faster when readiness signs stack up.

If you'd like, I can share the free Diaper Exit Plan™ that walks you through exactly how to know when to start—and how to make those early steps fun and stress-free. Just say the word and I'll send the link.

33 Wo.

Antworten

Jennifer Barnett

28. Juli 2025

Yall the tent works! Its day two and we're giving it another try with new toys. He has successfully peed and pooped!
Gotta keep this momentum up!

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

How are u can u help me please

35 Wo.

Antworten

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

22. Juli 2025

.

E-mail I just got! This was for a 27mo old boy. This was their second attempt at potty training and 2 week into it when they reached out to me. This Email was after JUST 1 call with me. If your struggling, get a potty-training consultation. It is worth it!

"My son has progressed SO much and I'm super happy. I mainly want to talk about how to "finish" potty training next.

Thanks for all of your help. It's made a big impact on our family!"

Anonymes Mitglied

17. Juli 2025

Hey yall.

My son is going to be 8 in less than 10 days. He is having constant, multiple day wetting accidents. Today he peed on the couch while playing video games, and he will consistently pee his pants while playing with his friends, they do notice and will mention it. Im at my whitts end. A psychiatrist [REDACTED] (were getting him evaluated for adhd) mentioned a medication called Desmopressin that might be able to help. Has anyone used this? Pros or cons with this medication?

Also, ANY advice is appreciated. I have no idea what else to do... I'm have constant breakdowns because of this. I'm worried about what will happen when he enters third grade. Please help..

Rebecca Ritter

8. Juli 2025

How do I get my 3 year old to poop on the potty?

He's been doing great peeing and having no accidents, but pooping is a challenge. Weve been potty trained for a few months now.

He asks for a diaper to poop so I know when he needs to go, but when I say let's poop on the potty he normally starts freaking out saying "no, a diaper" ew

Anonymes Mitglied

8. Juli 2025

We are on day 10 of potty training my just over 2 year old son and things have been going fairly well. The last 4 days were no accidents!

However, yesterday he realized that if he lifts up his penis he can shoot his pee all over the bathroom. We used the 3 day method, and reminded him that pee only goes in the potty, but I have had a hard time intervening while trying not to get sprayed.

Has anyone else had this problem? I would love some suggestions to stop this fast!

Anonymes Mitglied

3. Juli 2025

.

Toddler is a little over 3 years old we've been training for 2 1/2 weeks he's been doing GREAT with peeing in the potty but he will not poop! He'll either poop in his pants or he'll hold literally hold his butt closed with hands 😞 what to do? We've tried prizes, stickers, allowing to watch his tablet while trying, putting him on the potty as soon as we catch him hold it or after he's gone in his pants, toys, ect and NOTHING I mean NOTHING is working.

Nicole Tarantino-Windom

• Folgen

2. Juli 2025

.

Desperately seeking help for my stubborn, strong willed son who will be 4 in October and is supposed to start preschool in 31 days if he potty trained but he refuses to potty train. Please send me all your tips, tricks, good vibes!!!! Whatever you got!!!

ETA twin sister is potty trained no issue. He tells me he is scared and that it won't come out!!!

Samantha Dembinski

30. Juni 2025

My 3 almost 4 year old has been using the potty since January. No fear of going #1 or #2 on the potty. However if we put on underwear, he will go potty in the underwear. We have been having him bottomless while we are at home and I'm not sure how to get him to not go in the underwear.

Anonymes Mitglied

11. Juni 2025

I am posting this in need of support and not harmful criticism please.

My almost 8 year old still has accidents pretty frequently. He's been to the dr and they've ran numerous tests and he's doing well physically. He's also in therapy and nothing too extreme is currently happening. He has been through some trauma via divorce and moving around as well as moving states, also me getting remarried a few years ago and he has a baby sister who is basically potty trained fully.

He's also currently being tested for ADD/ADHD, and I don't really suspect sexual abuse because my son and I have had conversations and he has said nothing has happened.

I'm at my wits end.. sometimes he'll go a week or two with no accidents. Other times, he has multiple accidents in one day for multiple days.

Please help. Any tips or tricks or encouraging words or ANYTHING besides harmful criticism..

thanks guys..

Allison Jandu

Professional potty training consultant here...ADHD can be linked to accidents. There is research that shows improvement with accidents once ADHD symptoms are treated. Sometimes it's just a matter of not being able to focus on internal sensations as easily. Other causes could be: constipation, low muscle tone, or sensory processing challenges. I'm happy to help further if you want to send me a message. Hang in there mama.

42 Wo.

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

12. Juni 2025

Need advice for potty training my 2 year old. We are on day 3 and it has been a struggle. The first day we did just a Tshirt on, then the second and third I let him run around in underwear so he could get the sense of "oh I peed" but that isn't helping him. He has a very short attention span and won't sit on the toilet long enough to go which results in him peeing like minutes after sitting on the toilet.

Please help 🙏

GiftedPomelo364

11. Juni 2025

Looking for any suggestions and advice. My son is 3.5 years of age and has been potty trained since Sept./October before he turned 3. We have had issues with his daycare throughout the year and I have been able to get him back on track (not regressions put perhaps poor habits and perhaps attention seeking behavior occurring). Daycare does not do a reward system and their method of assisting is what is best for group care and putting a pull up back on which I have refused. I have expressed it would only confuse him even more. He is scheduled to start a new daycare in Sept.

My son had croupe the Monday returning from mother's day weekend for about a week. At which time he was having 2-3 overnight accidents with urine which is to be expected. The accidents overnight were reduced when he became healthy but are starting up again. They are becoming weekly events occurring 2-3x a week. Previously he would wake up in the middle of the night and go to the bathroom and or hold it. There was a recent passing of his grandfather which he is not aware of. I just do not know what to do anymore. I am cutting out snacking and drinking water before bed again due to the accidents. He is also having a peepee accident at daycare usually either at nap or when they walk to the park. I am told that the kids are taken to the bathroom before their walk to the park but who really knows if he is actually urinating during that bathroom break. It's been difficult to gauge what is going on at daycare as I think my son does not feel he can ask to use the bathroom while it is nap time though I am told the class goes as a group before lunch and are asked after lunch. There is no bathroom in the class and they have to use a communal bathroom in the hallway. My son usually holds his urine for a long time and does not have accidents outside of daycare. I'm concerned as I am now seeing some things transfer at home as the daycare will not implement a potty chart or a reward chart. I am at a loss. It has been a huge hurdle with daycare and everytime I reset things it goes back to normal for a month or 2 then reoccurs. Some kids wear pull ups in his class for nap so I am not sure if he thinks that's okay but he is aware that he wears undies and pee and poop goes in the toilet. He also has a younger sister in diapers and he is not confused by the fact that she gets changed and he goes to the potty. This has been such a hurdle and I really do not know what to do. I am starting a new job and cannot continue taking time off like I previously did to reset things.

Baruch Kushnir

31. Mai 2025

Still struggling with bedwetting even with an alarm?

Deep sleep?

Multiple wetting episodes a night?

Long treatment with little or no progress?

Don't give up – we're here to help.

With over 40 years of experience and more than 40,000 children supported, we're excited to offer a new guidance and support service for families using the bedwetting alarm. Free of charge temporarily.

Delivered through our interactive progress chart, this service gives you expert tips, clear tracki... Mehr anzeigen

Rebekah Scroggins

30. Mai 2025

Number 2? Any tricks for helping a little boy recognize his body is telling him to go number 2? My 4 year old (late training due to medical situations) has finally mastered peeing on the potty for the most part, but pooping has been a nightmare. Everyday it happens. I tell him when he starts to squat that he needs to go use the potty and he just stays where he's at. I'm pretty pregnant and our bathroom is upstairs so it's hard for me to physically put him on the toilet during these times...

Melanie Zamenhof

17. Mai 2025

Son will be 3.5yrs end of next month. Hes been potty trained for the past 6 weeks pretty much without accidents (1 poop accident and 2 pee accidents all because he was too distracted playing or couldn't get pants down in time).

However, for the past 2-3 weeks he seems to be withholding poop. He used to poop every day and then now he's holding it and we are basically forcing him to go by the end of the second day. He's not having an accident, and is actually going on the potty but it's a whole production of screaming and resisting to sit. He says his stomach hurts and he's holding his stomach and butt and doing a little "I need to poop" walk but then won't want to sit or go. He was literally crying tonight when sitting on the potty pooping.

The poop is soft, he eats fiber. Should I be getting him a laxative? I don't want him to have diarrhea or throw off his system, but just don't know what to do to help him at this point. He's not afraid of the potty because he has no issue sitting to pee, but seems to be afraid to poop in general now. He won't poop in a pull up and is insistent that poop goes in the potty and will eventually go. Just how do I avoid this production every other day?

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

16. Mai 2025

.

Consultant pro tip: There is no such thing as pee trained. Your little is either potty trained or not. If they can do pee, then they can do poop. You might just need different tools and technique.

If you are struggling with poop, please set up a consult. The sooner you do, the easier it is on all involved, especially the little. 2 weeks is my average to get them pooping in the potty. Have not met a child who couldn't poop in the potty after 7 yrs full time

Anonymes Mitglied

15. Mai 2025

.

Help! My son turned 3 on March 12th we have tried the 3 day potty training method which did NOT work, we've tried bare bottom method, we've tried prizes sticker charts toys candy ect... absolutely nothing we are trying is working. He has no interest in using the potty with throw a fit and say I DONT WANT TO and bring me a diaper and say ON NOW. If he does wear undies all day he'll pee in them or poop in them and does not care if he is wet. He'll tell me when he pees/poops but seems totally unphased if it's in his underwear. Idk what else to do. Currently for my mental health we are taking a month break but I need all the tips and tricks for when we try again. My 1st son was soooooo easy to train my 2nd is definitely being a challenge to say the least 😬

Faaqq mansoor official

14. Mai 2025

Dieser Inhalt ist momentan nicht verfügbar

Dies passiert, wenn der Eigentümer den Beitrag nur mit einer kleinen Personengruppe teilt oder er geändert hat, wer ihn sehen kann. Es kann auch sein, dass der Content inzwischen gelöscht wurde.

Anonymes Mitglied

8. Mai 2025

I need help 😓

I have a 2.5 year old boy. (Born end of August) in November he was going pee on the potty no issue for a few weeks and the regressed and didn't want anything to do with it. No biggy he's still young. We tried again in march and he was fully pee potty train immediately but we are struggling with poop.

He knows he has to go and will literally go in his undies standing in front of his potty. (No biggy if he does in his undies accidents happen) but he'll literally just go a smear and then cry to sit on the potty to finish so I'll help him get on it and then he won't finish. Five minutes later he'll do it all over again and it'll last all day. I don't know what else to try at this point but it's so hard keeping up with this. I've tried putting a diaper back on him and he does the same thing as well. We can't even go to the play ground with him doing this 3-4 times while there. He also has no known medical or stomach issues so it's nothing in that relation. He's also not backed up. I was hoping this would be done with by now since it's been almost 3 months but it's still happening all the time. The very first poop he has while us potty training he did it in his potty all by himself and was praised and everything for it. He hasn't done it again since then. I'm so lost and don't wanna spend our summer doing this non stop while out 😭

Anonymes Mitglied 966

Aw I have an August boy too ❤️

😓 I know it can be overwhelming (fr everyone involved) something that seemed to help my little dude was when he did the number two in his diaper, took him over to the toilet and showed him me putting the doo from the diaper into the toilet and then showed him the doo in the toilet and then I let him know that this is where the doo goes and then instructed him to flush and say “bye bye doo” 🐛 Also, when he’s sitting on the toilet, I sing a little song instructing him to push out the doo 🐛 🐛 I’m not sure if you’re doing any type of “ reward system “ but we’ve been using a sticker chart and that seems to help him get excited/eager to go doo in the potty. 🐛

46 Wo.

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

12. Mai 2025

I've been trying to get my son who just turned 4 in April potty trained. I'm hoping he can be able to go to pre k in the fall. In my state kids have to be potty trained since it's an all day type of pre k. He's partly interested in the potty.. he will sit on it if we set a timer. He has two different types of potties. A little stair type seat that attaches to our normal potty and a small one that makes flushing noises.. I've tried the underwear that is supposed to be leak resistant but he still pees through them.. he absolutely hates being naked unless it's bath time.. he also won't just wear underwear. He will throw a fit if he's not fully clothed.. sorry this is really long I just don't know what else to do.. hes a smart kid and I want him to start school with other kids his age since he's not in daycare due to me working from home. Any suggestions would be greatly appreciated.

Betsy Sotelo

4. Mai 2025

hello everyone, my parents told me to let my son run and play around/ do his own thing in just a shirt and underwear for potty training. is there anything else I need to do to help him potty train in this way? he would feel himself pee and there will be pee everywhere, and from there how do I teach him ? he's going to be 4 in June he's not that much verbal but he does his best. he's on the spectrum. sorry if my wording is everywhere at the moment 😅

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I have a question

48 Wo.

Antworten

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

27. April 2025

.

Come join me in under an hour for coffee and toddler talk for free, link in the comments.

Karin Seaman

16. März 2025

.

I need help and advice.

So I started potty training almost 2 weeks ago and then my son got a stomach bug, it's day 5 now it I think he's starting to eventually get over it, until yesterday he still had very watery poops.. So from day 2 I had him in diapers and next weekend we're going on vacation for a few days (Friday - Monday).

Do I go back to potty training as soon as he seems to have solid poops again?

He hasn't pooped today but ... Mehr anzeigen

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I have a question

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

23. Januar

My 9yo has been dry during the day since he's 3. Nighttime's are a different story. He wets every night. We stop fluids before 7 and have him use the bathroom twice before bed. He's gone to the urologist, who said everything was fine. We went to the ENT who said his adnoids & tonsils are fine. I've tried waking him throughout the night and he's already gone. For example - tonight he fell asleep at 10:30 and went to the bathroom right before that. I woke up at 1 and checked on him and he had already peed.

He's embarrassed to still be wearing pull-ups at night bc his brother doesn't (5yo). And sometimes to prove a point (I don't know what point he's proving here), he refuses to wear one and then ends up peeing the bed...which is what happened tonight.

I don't know what to do. I don't know how to help him. I'm at whits end and honestly, I feel like I'm out of options. We tried the alarm a couple years ago. Maybe I revisit it?? Has anyone had something similar? I know most kids grow out of it by now, but he hasn't. Are there any other moms in this group going through this at this age or have gone through this at this age?

Elise Lamphere

My 8 year old boy still struggles too - I hear so many little boys struggle with this and it's normal.

I put a clock in his room so he's got a reference point of what time a night it is when he wakes up and rolls over - I told him that if he wakes up and can focus on what time it is - he HAS to get up and take himself potty.

We've had a few dry nights in the past couple weeks. Not 2 in a row yet - but I also haven't had to do laundry everyday either - so #Winning

All this to say. I see you! And you're not alone!

9 Wo.

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

29. Januar

.

How do we potty train in a house full of carpet?

Anonymes Mitglied

24. März 2025

.

Don't know where to go from here... have 4.5yr who is still having many pee accidents a day... more so at nursery, though sometimes out about and home bug not always. No issue with poo accidents 🧑

We're tried everything... then have a day of no accidents and back to lots the next day...

Done sticker charts, incentives, praise, ignoring the accident other than just changing clothes...

Starting school in August and going to be classed as 'those parents who haven't bothered toilet training' - we have bothered and do care!

Help! 😭

Anonymes Mitglied

26. März 2025

.

My 3.5 year old is potty trained for pee during the day but he poops in his underwear and refuses to go to the toilet even though he's aware that it needs to be done in the toilet. How do I help him with this? Is it still pretty normal for this to be happening?

Christina Roberts Hargrove

When you see his facial expression that means poop, run him to the toilet so that the poop falls in and he can see that it's not so bad! Also, how are you responding to these accidents?

1 Jahr

Antworten

Karin Seaman

27. März 2025

.

So.. How long do you keep going before giving up and trying again later?

My son is almost 2 years 8 months.

We potty trained for almost 2 weeks, some days he had 1 accident at school, sometimes more, up to 4 or 5.. I think mostly it was 2 or 3..

Then he had a stomach bug and I had him in diapers (not pull ups) for about 1.5 weeks.

Now we've been in undies and pants again since Monday afternoon. He's been back at school since Tuesday.

Tuesday he had 2 or 3 accidents, yesterday none! But only because they took him to the toilet more often. Today I think 5.

One day I think it's going well and one day I'm so down about it.

Will it take time to adjust now after being in diapers again? Is this normal?

His teacher says we should just keep going, she thinks he'll get it. Because at school yesterday and today, he said he needed to pee, and he did.. Once per day I think.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

4. April 2025

.

Live Night training walk-through. Let me walk you through the dos and don'ts, as well as the myths about night training.

Tomorrow evening for $5, spots are limited.

link in the comments

Heather Elizabeth Freer

17. April 2025

.

Are we waking up our almost 4 years old in the middle of the night so they pee and they don't wet the bed ?

I been using towels but is there anything to use under them?

Nicole Politsky

My son is 3.5 and still wears a pull up for sleep. "Sleep underwear" we call it. Children lack the hormone to be able to hold their pee in the sleep until closer to 7 years old. ^[OBJ] I would not expect my four year-old to hold it all night yet, I think you're good!^[OBJ]

50 Wo.

Antworten
Bearbeitet

Kalyn Molina

15. April 2025

.

Scrunchy Mamas

· Folgen

15. April 2025

.

A love like no other! 🦎🌿

Faaig mansoor official

14. April 2025

Faaig mansoor official

Faaig mansoor official

• Folgen

14. April 2025

Who loves me? 🥰❤️

#viralpost2025シ #100k #photostyle #cute

Faaig mansoor official

10. April 2025

Faaig mansoor official

Faaig mansoor official

• Folgen

10. April 2025

Love is easy ❤️🌹

#everyone #style #photography #foryou

Faaig mansoor official

9. April 2025

.

Faaig mansoor official

· Folgen

9. April 2025

.

Who loves me? ❤️

#style #professional #photography #faaiqmansoorofficial #everyone

Faaig mansoor official

8. April 2025

.

Faaig mansoor official

Admin

·8. April 2025

.

Memories 🌞❤️

#everyonefollowers #Happy #style

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

5. April 2025

.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

4. April 2025

.

Want a Live walkthrough on potty training?

I got you covered. Come join me tomorrow evening.

Only $5. Spots are limited.

Link in comments.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

31. März 2025

.

The joys of being off school

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

30. März 2025

.

Ok guys, I am a potty-training consultant, and I am hosting a free coffee break to talk about common issues, it starts in a few minutes. It will last an hour. Click the link in the comments if you would like to join us.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

29. März 2025

.

Hey guys! I am a Caregiver Coach/Potty-Training consultant. Let's have some coffee and just chat. FCFS. Spots are limited. We can talk about common topics and how best to handle it. I set up the free zoom meeting on Sunday at 10 am, cst. I hope you can come. Comment if you are interested and I'll send you the link. ♡♡

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

Verfasser/in

Hope to see ya in 4.5 hours. Click the link for the zoom information. I know we are going to talk about poop wothholding. and ... Mehr anzeigen

1 Jahr

Antworten

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

29. März 2025

.

Good morning!

This is how I give my kids syrup. Its a medicine cup if you cant tell. The reasons are, it gives them age appropriate control on how much to use. It gives them age appropriate control on how to use it, pour or dip. It limits access to prevent over doing it and being wasteful. It is important to empower our kids while making sure it is age appropriate.

Faaig mansoor official

15. März 2025

.

Dieser Inhalt ist momentan nicht verfügbar

Dies passiert, wenn der Eigentümer den Beitrag nur mit einer kleinen Personengruppe teilt oder er geändert hat, wer ihn sehen kann. Es kann auch sein, dass der Content inzwischen gelöscht wurde.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

12. März 2025

.

E-mail I just got. This was after just one call. Don't struggle. I can and will help.

"Wanted to let you know that things are going better. He is now peeing in the potty much easier and initiating a lot on his own again.

Poops are coming a lot faster now but he is trying to get there on time and just needs to catch it a little sooner. ...

Mehr anzeigen

Bailey Hoberg

19. Juli 2024

.

I am dang near going back to pull ups. 😓 pee is great. We are pee trained, no issues. Poop on the other hand.... I have zero patience at this point. Never experienced soooo many poop accidents. And nearly intentional. He literally does not care.

My oldest never experienced it to this extreme.

He will be 3 in October and I'm determined to get this handled by or before then. PLEASE HELP. I cannot keep cleaning poop out of pants and underwear. 😭😭😭

Anna Marsden Lance

My son was six and still hated to poop on the potty, he tried to hold it in all the time. I made him clean out his own underwe... Mehr anzeigen

1 Jahr

Antworten
Bearbeitet

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

9. März 2025

.

Part of an E mail I got hust now. I feel so honored to be trusted, but not only trusted but trusted enough to come back for help with their other littles.

"Hi Liz!

We worked with you a year ago with our daughter and her pooping drama. She has been doing amazing and has had zero issues since!... Mehr anzeigen

Sarah Johnson

• Folgen

7. März 2025

This is a completely Free online workshop. Please share!

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

1. März 2025

Text I got yesterday. I love helping. It's so rewarding.

Mike Jerore

Good

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

11. Februar 2025

.

Potty training my 18 months old.

Day 1 was messy lots of accidents but by the end of the day he understood what I'm asking him to do.

Day 2 still many accidents and my little one was hesitant of pooping in pot which later on made him constipated.

Day 3 I let him poo in the diaper to overcome constipation. Very less accidents, he was showing signs to pee which made it easy for me to rush him to bathroom.

Now I want guidance that how can I make him poop in pot? He holds poop as I make him sit on pot.

Edit:

Day 4 He's peeing in pants today and crying on seat 😞

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I have a question

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

17. Februar 2025

How do I finish potty training ? My son just turned 4 he's been officially trained since 3 but he still has frequent accidents if he gets sidetracked or playing hard number one and two . Usually around 3 times a week . He still has accidents at night most nights . How can we help him to get over these last potty training hurdles ?

Anonymes Mitglied

19. Februar 2025

My 3.5 year old son is in preschool and is still in pull ups and having accidents. The teacher is always telling me that he refuses to let her change his pull up as of recently. He has been really difficult to potty train and I don't know what to do. 😞

Anonymes Mitglied

4. Februar 2025

Don't know if this is the right place to post this but we need some help . Our oldest son turned 10 a couple of months ago and he still wets the bed nightly . We have tried waking him up at night alarms and still no luck . We had him wearing goodnites to bed we tried to go without for the last couple months . We had a new baby a month ago between the extra bedding every night and everything else were all getting exhausted . I finally broke down and went to the store and got some goodnites I feel like a failure as a parent anybody have any ideas or help thanks .

Nakia-Jade Page

Have you been to the doctor yet? It might be worth seeing if there is an underlying condition causing it x

1 Jahr

Antworten

Diane Diaz

8. Februar 2025

Just started potty training. Pee is going well, but no poop. I know he has to go and he's a daily pooper. Any tips to encourage him to let it go?

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I have a question can I help u

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

19. Februar 2025

My son is 3.5 years old.

Potty training is on going for us.

I feel like we are trained, as parents, to take him to the potty vs him being trained to go to the potty.

If we don't take him to the potty after a while, he will just go in his underwear and not care.

He does not tell us when he has to go pee or poop.

So to avoid accidents, we say "okay let's go to the potty" he will then have no problem going.

How do we get him to tell us he has to go to the potty? Or have him just go to the potty when he gets that feeling?

We've tried asking him constantly, reminding him that when he has to go, to tell mommy and daddy.

Rewards, stickers, being positive about it.

We also tried, taking a toy away when he has an accident.

I dunno, nothing seems to work!

Anonymes Mitglied

9. Februar 2025

Our son is 8 years old and he still wets the bed most nights . We have tried waking him up with no luck and alarms. We just let him wear goodnites for now . He has a hard time with it cause his little sister is 3 and fully trained day and night . Anyone been through this or have ideas ?

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I have a question

1 Jahr

Antworten

Senetria Mitchell

22. Februar 2025

.

My son will go to the bathroom on his own but he refuses to wipe after #2..... 🤔😞

Anonymes Mitglied

18. Februar 2025

.

I have a 3 year old boy who is stubborn and willful and loves every idea about potties, watching Mom and dad, hand washing, flushing, potty songs, potty books, except the actual sitting on the potty. My preschool says they want him to be 100% child led in regards to potty training as they find that most successful. Will my willful lad one day wake up and want to use the potty?

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

13. Februar 2025

Consultant pro tip: learning experience for the adults. Feel your bladder....tune into it...you should be able to feel the tingle of I have to pee. The more you tune in the more it feels like you actually have to go.....but before this you didn't. This is why it is very important in the first few days not to guess your little has to pee, no matter the signs. We are teaching our kids to tune into a signal that is always there. If you see signs it's your cue to go on higher alert and wait for actually pee. This will help them learn the right time to sit on the potty.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

9. Februar 2025

And it just gets better.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

9. Februar 2025

I love my job! The turn around is so rewarding for all involved.

Victoria Pennington-Sorensen

• Folgen

2. Februar 2025

I seriously need some guidance or Hail Mary... my lil dude will be 4 in 17 days and STILL number 2s in his pants. He doesn't care. He's in the 99th percentile for his age. Sooo he doesn't fit on the training toilets. He's not afraid. We've tried reward system. Special shopping for underwear. Reluctant negatives- no details will be provided. We have pin pointed when he's getting ready to go number two. Say hey you are go go go to the big boy potty. He stubbornly stays put and screams no... what can I do?! I'm loosing my mind. He got pee down quick, we have been pushing number two for almost 8 months.

Please help us

Anonymes Mitglied

30. Januar 2025

Got a 3 year old boy who is currently potty training. We have pee down fairly good random accidents here and there. Poop is still a very much work in progress as well as nights . We try to use cloth trainers during the day . My father inlaw is in the hospital so we're going to drive out to see him soon it will be approximately an 18 hr drive . Should we go back to pull-ups or keep doing what we're doing for the trip ?

Tyre Thomas

We kept a potty in the car for a while..

1 Jahr

Antworten

Marie-Clare Beardslee

29. Januar 2025

.

Is 16 months old too late to start EC?

My son is 16 months old and I am noticing some of the "easy catches." Wake ups are hit or miss because often he wakes up very mad and only wants to cuddle. Putting him on the toilet when he is like that only makes him more angry.

Sometimes I can put him on the toilet mid-pee, but I don't know if that is beneficial for him. He does like sitting on the toilet as I reward him by allowing him to put toilet paper in the toilet. I don't know why he likes it but I'll roll with it!

Yesterday and today I have been putting him on the toilet and saying, "go pee" and he sort of bears down and does actually pee.

Should I be doing more of a potty training approach on this because of his age or does EC still make sense?

Pic of my little helper for attention 😂

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

You can start potty training as soon as they are able to follow a 2 step comand. Like put a block in a bin.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

29. Januar 2025

I have a 7yo who still wets the bed a few times a week. He doesn't seem to be aware at all that he does it. He sleeps right through it. Ped said not to worry about it and it's normal up to age 10 or something and that it's neurological. Anyone have any suggestions aside from taking him to pee before we go to sleep, which sometimes works and sometimes doesn't? Or do I just wait it out like my ped says?

Anonymes Mitglied 526

We have a son who just turned 10 still wets at night most nights . We just have him wear a goodnite to bed hoping it stops a puberty.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

28. Januar 2025

Hi! Hoping to get some advice or ideas for my 4.5 yr old boy!! He was potty trained (reluctantly by him) right around his 4th birthday. He is able to tell me when he needs to go and does everything himself once in the bathroom. However the problem is he will NOT go unless I'm in the bathroom with him. This means he won't pee at school (9 to 3), any time I'm not home or at friends houses. In the cases he can't hold it any more he will pee in his underwear and then go change himself. When I ask why he needs me with him he can't explain just cries that he wants me to come with him. It's stressing me out because I know he's uncomfortable all day at school and I don't know how to get him to pee without me. I'm like his emotional support pee person haha he also has not yet pooped on the toilet and will only poop in his underwear but I feel like I can't work on this until he can go in the bathroom and pee by himself without me.... Any suggestions or ideas?!? Thanks!!!

Also... he has no other medical diagnosis and is otherwise average in development

Anonymes Mitglied

26. Januar 2025

Well our 5 year old son has been trained for daytime for about 2 years now . Unfortunately he still wets the bed on a nightly basis. How do we get him nighttime trained ?

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

First step is bare butt. I would look into the oh crap night training.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

18. Januar 2025

My son turns 5 in April. He still uses a diaper to go no.2 in We hv tried hiding the diapers in the past but he will cry and constipate himself for days if he does not get it. He finds also his 2.5 yr old sister's diapers & uses them when we stopped buying pullups for him. My pediatrician tells me he will just do it when he is ready and we cannot force him. Comments & advice anyone?

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I have a question what u using for petty training

1 Jahr

Antworten

Toddler-Essentials

21. Januar 2025

.

Toddler-Essentials

• Folgen

21. Januar 2025

.

Is your toddler ready for toilet training? if so, look no further than the Toddler-Essentials range of products. From the unique British made Easy-Pour Potty, with magic stickers, a cutlery set, Vincent the bear mascot and moving onto the toilet seat and step stool. We have a full range of products specially branded to suit your toddler. Available online at Amazon.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

17. Januar 2025

.

If you can't find your answers here, Oh Crap! and more Potty-Training Support Group is amazing. Full of help and way less spam.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

17. Januar 2025

Lol, a client sent me a Pic of a poop in the potty that looks like the 🍌, these little joys and the parents joy about the poop in the potty makes me smile so much

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

16. Januar 2025

Email I got from a client in Australia,

"Thanks again for your time yesterday morning (evening for you!). I felt a weight off my shoulders after speaking with you and the process has felt more straight forward over the past couple of days.

I noticed a real shift in Zach's demeanor and behavior towards the potty yesterday, which was really heartwarming. As he's no longer receiving mixed messages from me, he's stopped resisting sitting on the potty, trying to hug me whilst sitting on the potty and demonstrating what looked like a fear of release. Yay!"

One call with me can make a huge impact. I love what I do. What a rewarding job I have.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

16. Januar 2025

Text i just got.

Houston we got a log in the toilet 🤩

I love helping with potty training.

Sarah Johnson

▪ Folgen

14. Januar 2025

Are you ready to sleep through the night again? This FREE Forum will have you back on the rest train in as little as one night!

Mindful Family Management

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

11. Januar 2025

Email I got this morning

"Hi Liz, we just wanted to give you a quick update that J had a great week back at school this week. See below the note from his teachers yesterday. He seems to have turned the corner! 😊

J had yet another successful day! Yay! He had a BM in the potty at 10:15 today and let Mis Lillian know he needed to be wiped. No accidents or peeing mishaps. We are very impressed by his improvement!!"

This was after just one call with me guys. If you are struggling please reach out. Anyone in this group gets 20% off my website prices.

Melissa Elizabeth

10. Januar 2025

Looking for any feedback if anyone has encountered these behaviors since potty training your child. While I understand regression happens with toileting this really isn't regressive behavior being displayed. My son turned 3 in early December and had been potty trained at home for quite some time. There was some issues that we resolved at daycare in December where there was a lack of follow through with toileting. Anyway, he is independent with toileting and has no accidents (very few overnight accidents). For the past two weeks my son will come out of the bathroom and will not pull up his underwear and pants. He has mastery of this skill and was previously completing this step independently. No changes in clothing that has made this task more difficult. He will often ask caregivers or his teachers to do this step. We do have an 8th month at home and at first I thought it was attention seeking but it has become more of a silly game lately where he knows he should not be doing this but is testing limits. He is very much in "testing boundaries phase" of development. When we tell him several times to pull his pants up he will and other times will refuse. Same is occurring at daycare. He started doing this in other environments as well. We have discussed why he shouldn't do this, we recite a song about the steps of toileting, etc. He toilets independently other than still needing some assistance with wiping after passing a bowel movement. When we ask him why he is not pulling up his pants he will laugh or ask for help or completely ignore us. Lately it has been a lot of behavior modification tactics being implemented at home and not sure if this one is just another one to add to the mix. 🙄

Camille Sena

8. Januar 2025

Hello. Any ideas on how to teach them to get a poop out? My son knows a poop is coming soon and rushes to the toilet but then nothing comes out. We can even get him to sit for about 10min by singing silly songs but nothing. We have tried the blowing bubbles trick but that doesn't seem to do anything. He's sitting properly and is supported. Any ideas on how to describe what to do or other ways to relax or push it out?

Baruch Kushnir

Where does he poop in the end? Dr. Baruch Kushnir

1 Jahr

Antworten

Kelly Jones

2. Januar 2025

Hi everyone! My 2 1/2 year old does great at home without a diaper (completely bottomless). He can get to the potty and pee or poop nearly 100% of the time, however, with underwear or pants on, there is more resistance. With underwear, he will pee a tiny bit in the underwear then throw a fit when we move him to the potty. Not sure where to go from here because we've been trying to be more relaxed and not forceful, but he won't take off Tue undies and pee without a fit. Any advice here?

Camille Sena

Maybe Try no undies just shorts so that closed feeling is not there?

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

7. Januar 2025

.
Getting ready to pottytrain our 22 month old so been a while since we've did this. Thinking about using cloth training pants at home and using pull-ups when out and at night . Our older son still wets the bed and he turns 10 tomorrow we just buy him goodnites . Worried about our younger son following his brother's tracks anybody got any advice or tips for either one of them thanks

Anonymes Mitglied

11. November 2024

.
Looking for some recommendations. My 6.5 year old twins are still not dry overnight. We will have a night or 2 when they wake up dry but then they are soaked the next day. We stop all liquids at least an hour before bed and they empty their bladders right before they go to bed.

We tried just underwear at bed, but I don't have the time in the am to clean them up everyday before school etc.

Any insight would be helpful thank you

Anonymes Mitglied 607

Our son turns 10 tomorrow and still wets the bed most nights . We've tried alarms talked to his pediatrician about medication he wanted to wait tell puberty. We started to wake him up throughout the night that did result in some dry night unfortunately also a tired grumpy kid . We just have him wear goodnites to bed figuring on this going on for the long haul .

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

3. Januar 2025

How does everyone night time train their boys?? My son is nearly 6 and he's still wearing pull ups/happy pants to bed because he wee's so much. He wants to wear undies to bed so badly. We have him go to the toilet 2-3 times before bed along with no drinking near bedtime. He also wakes up during the night to come into my bed and last night I took him to the toilet during the night and he still woke up with a wee in his pull ups that morning. Should I be waking him up during the night to take him??

My 7 year old boy was still wearing pull ups at night until he was about 5.5yo so maybe my boys are just late? But also when my youngest sleeps at his Nana's house he stays dry most night. But at home he wee's so much.

Christina Roberts Hargrove

I got the idea from the 3 day method to do a pee an hour before wake-up. I only needed to do that 2 days during his training as he was dry waking on the 3rd day. Maybe try waking him an hour before his normal wake up time to use the bathroom a few times and see if that helps? I kept the bathroom dark and didn't talk to him at all while he went to reinforce that it was still night time and that he needed to go back to sleep after.

1 Jahr

Antworten
Bearbeitet

Anonymes Mitglied

3. Januar 2025

My boy is 3 years 2 months, we have no pressure from preschool to be potty trained and they prefer 100% child led. I know all kids are different, but what can I maybe expect from child led, in regards to signs? He can put his pants on, he doesn't tell me if he's pooped or peed his diapers, he has no fear of flushing the toilet, he likes his floor potties but hasn't had any releases, he always follows us adults to the toilet. For child led, will he just wake up one day and say no more diapers? We've tried potty training three times over the last year with different methods and they weren't successful.

Any tips welcome! Thanks for reading.

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I have a question for u are u starting potty training today

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

24. Dezember 2024

My son turns 10 in January and he still wets the bed nightly . We've tried alarms slept right thru them. We tried waking him up multiple times throughout the night . He potty trained at 18 months for day time night time has always been wet . We just have him wear goodnites and they work fairly good. Never thought I'd still be buying pull-ups at this age anybody else going thru this or have any ideas ? Thanks

Anonymes Mitglied

Verfasser/in

Well we've let him go to bed the last 4 nights wearing absolutely nothing to bed and so far we just have a lot of laundry and a grumpy kid sick of bedwetting his attitude is definitely down . He told me this morning that he feels like a baby and no one else wets the bed. This is starting to break out hearts .

1 Jahr

Antworten

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

31. Dezember 2024

Update I got from my client after just one call,

"scheduling first follow-up call for potty package #2 for C. Since our initial call on 12/19, we feel like we've made really good progress on the potty (following your advice!) and would appreciate guidance on next steps. C is now consistently peeing on the potty and having very few, if any, accidents, including at naptime (not using any diaper, pants, etc. at nap now). He no longer seems to be having the fear/severe withholding issue."

One call with me can change the game.

Heather Eckart

28. Dezember 2024

My 6 yr old was potty training at 2 years and he has always done wonderful except pooping on the toilet.. we have tried just about everything including sticker chart, rewards, money, candy, no electronics, gotta go turtle, we did finally figure out going commando but he will poop a little and even having him sit on the toilet still nothing he has gone commando for days even he will sneak pants or underwear if he can't hold it.. he knows how to use the toilet because a few times we had him sit on it and he would poop a little but he doesn't want us to be excited we have even told him we don't have to know if he poops on the toilet as long as it is not in his pants..

Brit Morgan

Our son does this too. He's younger but I know he absolutely knows how and just refuses. There is no reward/punishment that would matter to him 😞

1 Jahr

Antworten

Medelin Hernandez

18. Dezember 2024

Hi, my son is going through a potty training regression a month ago. We started potty training when he was 29 months in June, he learned to use the toilet after 10 days, with no wet diapers. He always pooped in the bathroom at times would go on his own without any help but now he's pooping in his underwear. I returned to pull-ups because I have been handwashing 3 underwares a day. Please help any recommendations are greatly appreciated.

Sarah Johnson

Try going commando (no underwear, no diaper) in loose pants, for a while. Underwear can feel enough like a diaper to cause confusion in some kids. If that doesn't work go back a step further to no pants for a day or so. I host monthly forums through my company Mindful Family Management. We just had a Toilet Learning forum yesterday but due to popularity I am repeating it next month on January 9th. Message me and I will get you registered! We can do a consultation in the mean time and see if we can get your issue straightened out before then.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Sarah Johnson

• Folgen

19. Dezember 2024

This is a FREE event that will give you a solid foundation for getting your child out of diapers, in as little as 2 to 5 days!

Mindful Family Management

Amanda Marie

16. Oktober 2024

Trying to decide between a little potty and then the stairs that climb up to the potty like pic below

Also wondering if it's too early my son is 26 months now and he always wants to flush the potty or get toilet paper for me and be involved lol

Medelin Hernandez

hi, that's the one I have and it is great for our family. I went straight to this seat because I didn't want to clean a potty. I think its very convenient. I started potty training when my son was 29 months. But he is on the tall side. I still think it would be a good fit for you.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Donna Mortell

17. Dezember 2024

.

My son is scared to use the public toilet any ideas to help him feel more comfortable using a big toilet?

Natalie Blackson

If he's scared of the auto flusher bring post it's with you to cover the sensor while he's going

1 Jahr

Antworten

Toddler-Essentials

17. Dezember 2024

Our award !

Toddler-Essentials

· Folgen

17. Dezember 2024

Just arrived! Fantastic.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

28. Mai 2024

There it is! I am in the book!!!!

Anonymes Mitglied

20. November 2024

So I need help! My son will be 3 in January. He keeps taking his clothes and diaper off either at nap or at night (both when he wakes up from either.) He will then pee and poop on the floor. It has happened multiple times. He can unsnap and unzip stuff. He can take off his diaper wheather it's on backwards or not. What do I do?

Please help a stressed out mama!

Kaitlyn Rose Raglin

Is he day time potty trained? I second the putting the potty chair in his room

1 Jahr

Antworten

Molly Woods

16. November 2024

.

HELP!

Last weekend we started potty training our 3 year old son. He showed 0 interest. We tried the fruit loop in the toilet, bribing with gifts, and even offered to let him outside just to see if it would help and nothing. So we decided to take a step back on day 3 because we had not used the toilet at all, not even once. He was at daycare Tuesday, home Wednesday and Thursday, and when he went back to daycare today he kept taking all his clothes off and peeing/pooping in the floor. This is after being back in a diaper all week and none of these incidents happening at home.

Has anyone ever had anything like this happen? I feel like a complete failure

Kaitlyn Rose Raglin

9. November 2024

.

So I have potty training my 2 year old boy for a week and he is doing AMAZING. Very little accidents. However we still had like 70 diapers left and we use them for nap and bedtime. When I wake him up in the morning he doesn't not want me to take his diaper off. He has a meltdown. Even though he does so good. He's still wet at night and sometimes after nap if he doesn't go right before.

Should I try "pull ups" instead of diapers to initiate "no more diapers" in full effect?

But at the same time the first couple of days I couldn't even use the padded underwear because he thought it felt like a diaper and would just pee in them.

He did good with a pair of padded underwear yesterday though.

Any opinions on those posh baby underwear at night?

His tantrums to take off his diapers are so bad that it feels traumatizing. I also don't want him to have accidents at night all the time.

I also have a hard time getting him to "try" to go before bed or leaving. If he doesn't feel it then he will just say "no! I can't"

I have even bribed him to sit down and try with candy.

Brit Morgan

3. November 2024

.

My son has been potty trained for pee for about 8-9 months. He had pooped in the toilet a couple times but absolutely refuses now. Says "it's too hard". He's never really been consipated he just waits until his diaper is on and immediately poops. He's 3 years and 3 months old I've tried bribed, TV, a chart, etc. he ademently doesn't care about any of it. Just doesn't wanna use it. Any advice?

Sarah Johnson

When/why is he eventually in a diaper?

1 Jahr

Antworten

Mary Burgess

7. November 2024

.

3 year old can put his own pull up on but as soon as we sit on the toilet he freaks out but when he's naked all day long will go on the potty by himself and will tell me when he's poopy what am I doing wrong?

Sarah Johnson

You could be over prompting. Sometimes all you need to do is back off a little. Message me if you want to chat about the details.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Ashley Brown

2. November 2024

.

Can someone point me in the direction where to learn how to start potty training? I have a 2 1/2 year-old son.

Sarah Johnson

Basically, there are 4 phases: You start with Pants Off Dance Off then move to Commando Couch Potato, next is Commando Crusader, and then they graduate to The Underoo Crew! Message me if you want further explanation.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

4. November 2024

5yo still wet diaper at night.

During the day no problems, every time he goes to the toilette.

Anyone else struggling?

Maria Rico

I cut liquids off after dinner. Potty before bed and then I wake my son up before I got to bed at 10. He wakes up with a full bladder at 6.

This has worked so well for us with the occasional accident.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Meghan Watson

25. Oktober 2024

I'm just at a loss. We are back to trying to potty train my now 3 and a half year old. He literally refuses to go. We put him in underwear first thing this morning and he held it until he just said he was wet. He peed his pants a little, we went into the bathroom and he stood there screaming. We forced him to sit on the potty and he screamed and stiffens his legs. He will not sit for anything. He stood up, we told him he wasn't leaving the bathroom until he sat on the toilet and finished. He proceeded to stand there screaming crying and then peed all over the floor. We again told him to sit on the toilet and he just won't. I'm at a huge loss. I just don't know what to do. He is currently still in the bathroom just standing there. Idk what to do. He is 3 and a half and knows when he has to go and what he is doing, but just won't do it on the toilet and idk why. 😞

Maria Brady

Is your son verbal? Can he share why he does not like. Like does he say scared? Maybe having toys only to use while he is in the restroom may help.

Have you tried a small potty for him and the naked method before?

My son was so hard to potty train. One thing I noticed is that some kids want to be respected. For example my son didn't like me telling him go potty. So I tried at 2 1/2 then stopped and started at 3 then stopped and tried at 3 1/2 the third time I basically just started sitting him in the toilet with clothes on just so he began to feel like the bathroom is a safe a place. I also had a potty in the living room and when I was alone with him kept him naked a few hours a day and I started to keep a log in when he would likely pee after a drink and analyze his body language. As soon as I would see he was ready I would seat him right away. Poop was another monster. He would hide under the table and I would just keep bringing him to the toilet with a potty chair ...he was trained at 4 close to 4 1/2. Some kids are very difficult. The issue is if they are tense they will likely hold it. For poop super bad because they get constipated and will hurt them when poop. Being afraid of pee and poop will only delay the potty train more. My advice is to not force him. He needs to feel safe in the bathroom first. Make it fun and have bubble inside. Right now my son is 5 and still working the wiping and standing up when to pee, but has zero accidents and goes on his own otherwise and does not pee the bed. It does make difference to meet where they are.

1 Jahr

Antworten
Bearbeitet

Leif Bierer

16. Oktober 2024

Please help, my four year old son refuses to transition from daipers to the toilet, ive tried mild verbal pressure and bribery but hes stubborn like his papa, any advice?

Sarah Stephenson

What kind of bribery did you use? For my son I bought so many different kinds of candies and even toys to encourage him. Plus started with the potty in the living room. It took about a year but he's finally potty trained with a few accidents here and there. Good luck! It is definitely a frustrating experience.

Oh I should mention he was in underwear during the day ... lots of laundry and carpet cleaning but we got there.

1 Jahr

Antworten
Bearbeitet

Anonymes Mitglied

16. Oktober 2024

Any parents got advise on potty training ? My lil man is 4 and he will pee on the potty no problem , wears underwear all day but when it comes to pooping on the potty he did it the other day but now just wants a diaper to poop.

Any tips or tricks?

Sincerely a defeated mother 🥺

Le Bon Simon

8. Oktober 2024

Hi everyone, for first time with 4 year old in disney park. is potty trained about six mounth, it s ok put him in pull ups i heard someone put in...

Sophie Pilar Gallegos Chua

If you need to leave the line, just let the cast member know you're going to the restroom and they should be accommodating! There are two bathrooms in fantasyland (where the smaller rides are) and the baby center is super useful which is located on Main Street. At the baby center they have a smaller potty for kids to use.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Vittoria Pietrantonio

7. Oktober 2024

Toilet Training Day 5

I wanna give upppppp! 😞😞

My little one keeps peeing on floor and on his learning tower. He's very clingy, very whiny, and asks for the boob a million and one times a day.

I know it's just the beginning but this is seriously so exhausting, especially because my little one shows he understands where to pee in terms of showing me (pointing to toilet), verbalizing "toilet", "pee" "poo" and is also able to do ASL for toilet. When I say "does pee go on the floor? He responds "no". When I say where does pee go, he tells me where.

He's had some successful pees and poos on the toilet with "forced sitting"/prompting. He says "pee, I did it" and points to his penis whenever he is peeing and is really proud of himself when he does successfully pee. He has self initiated a few times over the past 5 days but nothing came out.

I guess I'm just wondering, am I the "issue"? Am I being unrealistic? Am I not picking up on cues fast enough? Or should a kid who's able to show this much understanding when asked, be able to pee successfully without this many "accidents".

Thank you in advance

Sincerely as very very tired mama.

Briana Elise Bolta

Hun don't stress it to much you will get through it and if he's not ready he's not ready mine wasn't fully potty trained till like almost 4 it will be ok

1 Jahr

Antworten

Vittoria Pietrantonio

6. Oktober 2024

Day 4 of potty training

Does anyone have any personal experience with using the ikea potty?

I'm currently using the Ikea one but my son is having trouble sitting independently and I don't know if this is attributing to his lack of successful pees in the potty/toilet - he will run to the bathroom mid pee; he asks for help and I have to physically sit him on the ikea potty.

I know that the baby Bjorn is the equivalent. Are they essentially the same in terms of width/height/measurements? Would I just encounter the same exact issues of him independently sitting with any potty that I end up going with?

Thank you

Grace Lumagui Lanada

Is he able to sit fine on it normally? Maybe it's just the "panic" of going mid pee

1 Jahr

Antworten

Lisa Armstrong

6. Oktober 2024

I'm not really sure what to do... my son is 21 months, I was not planning to really potty train yet at all. His older brother was about 3 when he potty trained.

I have 2 problems...

I brought up the potty as I did with my first to get used to it. He knows when he has to poop and will point to his diaper so I thought I'd start asking if he wanted to sit on the potty, he says yes but when you actually go to sit him down he freaks right out... I'm not sure if I should try a new potty or just leave it be for now until he is older and understands better.

Second, he has started to associate the tub with pooping... almost every bath if not more frequently he will poop in the tub. He will point and I take him out but sometimes I'm not quite fast enough.... I'd like to stop this if at all possible. This started maybe a month ago

Help!

Amanda Medlyn

30. September 2024

.

Is there a potty watch that vibrates at set intervals and also has a timer for the child to know how long to sit on the potty?

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I have a question

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

13. September 2024

.

We are night training our 7 year old. We've attempted many times in the past and just gave up because we felt he wasn't ready. This time around we spoke to his pediatrician, she spoke to him, he expressed wanting to get rid of the pull ups and we started a rewards chart.

We are on week 3 and no progress. Y'all!! I'll use tonight as an example. He didn't drink anything after 7, peed after dinner, after shower and right before he fell asleep at 9:00pm. I woke him up at 11pm, and by 1:30 he was already wet. Last night we had gotten him up 2x and he still wet the bed around 4 am.

We've had nights where he goes dry but my husband and I were up more than 4 times. I don't think this is normal. Maybe he's not ready. . . I'm starting to lose hope here.

I've tried putting him to bed in just a t shirt, no undies.

Anyone out there have success or figure it out after a similar story?

Signed,

A very tired and worried mama

Kamila Dent

Speak to your gp about medicine to reduce amount of wee his body produces at night sounds like you have tried everything so might need that little help.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Destiny Furrow

13. September 2024

.

Hello! I have been trying to potty train my 26 month old, but struggling. I tried the "oh crap method" but it didn't work. How did everyone else do it?

Megan Westbrook

Maybe they just aren't ready yet...

1 Jahr

Antworten

Li Iz

12. September 2024

My son is 3, he's been pretty good with using the potty with occasional accidents. Our issue is when he needs to poop he won't get off the toilet. He'll do his thing then I ask if he's done and he will say no. So I wait and let him do his business but then he starts to sing, mess with the toilet paper, towels, he'll put his feet up on toilet seat. He can spend 30 mins just sitting there. He gets distracted and doesn't continue pooping for some time and whenever I try to take him off he tells me no he's not done so I let him be but really I can't be sitting with him for 30 mins watching him poop.  Anyone else have this problem or is it just my kid?

Christina Roberts Hargrove

You can set a timer for her and tell him that he has to get down if he hasn't done his poops by then, and stick to it. Maybe offer a reward if he finishes within the time? We want to encourage full bowel movements, but continuing to sit and lots of pushing are also bad for babe's body. He will ask you to go later if he's really not done.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Taylor Nicole Williams

11. September 2024

My baby boy will be 3 in November. I let him take the reins on potty training and we recently dove right in with big boy undies. Going pee in the toilet has been a no brainer for him but he WILL not poop in the toilet. He did it once and he was happy but then after that he won't.

He tells me he has to poop but screams and throws himself off the potty puts his undies back on and poops. He also won't poop on the floor (thank goodness) but the other day I refused to give in and didn't put his undies back on after he refused to poop in the potty so all day he cried and held in poop he finally pooped the next day in his pull up he was wearing from the night. I'm tired of throwing out undies 😓

Christina Roberts Hargrove

Do you know why he won't go poop in the potty? My guy finally admitted that he was scared of it, so I gave him a lion stuffy I used at the dentist as a kid when I was scared, told him its story, and let him know that it would help him be brave. No more pooping in undies after that, and he was bragging a week later that he was so brave, he didn't even need the stuffy! Once you figure out what the real problem is, you can find a creative way to solve it!

1 Jahr

Antworten
Bearbeitet

Ashley O'Neal

7. September 2024

I have a 2 year old boy that has shown all the signs of being ready to potty train. We have been potty training for almost a month or so now. He was doing great. Running to the potty when he had to go, pooping in the toilet, staying dry with little to no accidents. This past week, he has had so many accidents and thinks it's funny going pee or poop in his pull up. Is this normal? I have been continuing to take him every 30/45 mins and even if he has an accident. I'm just getting discouraged. Need advice 😞

Fortune Glasse Cotten

Make it fun. Introduce him to Daniel Tiger. Draw funny signs or make up funny songs about peeing in the potty not on the floor.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Heather Elizabeth Freer

30. August 2024

Is their fiber gummies for your kids that help them poop regularly?

My son just started potty training and hasn't poop in 3 days 😞

Samantha Wallace

29. August 2024

Started potty training as soon as my son turned 3 in May so about 3ish months now. Was doing amazing little to no accidents during the day and no accidents at night at all. He is now starting to have full blown pee accidents every morning right before he gets out of bed, he is soaked and he has carpet in his room so I'm exhausted from cleaning it every morning and it still smells like pee! Idk what to do I'm about to start putting pull ups on him again just for bedtime (I really don't want to go back to pull ups 😭)

Renee Cortesi

put undies on underneath the pull up so he can still feel the sensation but without the mess 😊

1 Jahr

Antworten

Caitlin Simmonds

29. August 2024

We're almost 2 weeks into potty training our boy, since Sunday morning his nappy overnight has been dry and goes for a big pee when he gets out of bed.. How long would you wait until going completely nappy free for night times?

TIA ❤️

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

How old is he

1 Jahr

Antworten

Schatzi Fae

22. August 2024

Hi ladies! I have a recently-turned 4 yr old son who is having trouble learning how to ONLY use a LITTLE bit of toilet paper. Every time he poos, he literally unrolls the WHOLE roll of toilet paper into the toilet 🤦🏻

We have talked with him over and over and he still does it.

He is my wild child who is fiercely independent and incredibly stubborn and destructive 😂

* Question for you all: Is there some kind of toilet paper roll holder that is self-limiting? For example, it will only allow a certain amount of toilet paper to be distributed and is enclosed?

TIA for any suggestions on how to nip this behavior in the bud and also product recommendations!

My sewage pipes thank you too!

Hallie Wiseley Craig

Bump

1 Jahr

Antworten

Julianna Deemer

• Folgen

25. August 2024

Working on potty training my son. Today he would start to pee in his undies and then stop, we would go to the potty and sit and/or stand depending on the mood he was in and then he wouldn't pee anymore.

Any advice? How can I help him relax and let his pee out when he's on the potty? Should I make him sit on the potty more often? My first son caught on quick but this little guy, not so much 🤔

Jessica Sima

24. August 2024

Day 2 of potty training my almost 3 year old son. We had a very successful first day (4 big pees, no accidents!). Now on day 2, he doesn't want to sit on his potty and is fighting it. We have given him soooo many treats and are not ashamed to use screen time. Any other recommendations to get him to sit?

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

What are you guys using for potty training I could help you guys out because I'm doing the three day Potty training method

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

24. August 2024

I am really hoping someone can help me with language regarding potty training/diaper changes/private parts. This is sooo long, I'm sorry!!! If you're willing to read and help- thank you!

Our son will be 3 in December. His whole life he's pretty much only been "taken care of" by 4 people: mom (me), dad, grandma, and aunt (AKA body safety team). This includes diaper changes/baths/showers.

As far as potty training goes - we have tried a bunch of different things. But basically: he can hold it. He knows when he's gotta go. He knows if he's wearing a pull up/diaper vs underwear and that he can go in a pull up/diaper, but that he shouldn't go in his underwear. He's peed on the potty many many times, just not interested at the moment. He has even held his bladder all night long before when he chose to wear underwear to bed. Anyway...

He just started half day preschool. He has also had a couple different sitters recently watch him for the first/second time. We have always tried to teach him about private parts/no one should see or touch except xyz situations but with him getting older, starting preschool, understanding things better, having more potential "care takers" we have been trying to do better at explaining private part safety and boundaries and stuff. I am using books, he has a body safety team, etc.

Well in the midst of all this - he has decided that he really really really doesn't want anyone changing his diapers/pull ups except one of his 4 safe people. And he's not willing to go potty on the potty, even if it's offered to be done "privately."

At preschool, all the kids just stand in a line and go potty on potty chair (with assistance of course - this is a 3yo room). Obviously this isn't a very private thing (and he's been offered privacy to go while there and hasn't accepted it). Anyway - he holds his bladder and poop the whole time he's there (in total probably 7am-1230pm ish). When we get home he will go (in his pull up).

Tonight a babysitter watched him from 5pm-9pm ish. He was doing the potty dance but wouldn't go potty. Once I was done, I let her know and she told him "your mama said she will change your diaper so if you wanna go, your mama can change it and not me." He went in a corner, did his business in his pull up, and I changed him when I got home.

So my questions....after alllll those details:

1. Do I need to be worried about his new boundaries? I don't think anything has happened to him but I'm not dumb enough to act like I "know" for a fact. Part of me feels really proud of him for setting his boundaries and understanding that those areas are meant to be kept private!!

2. Is there a better way to communicate this stuff to him? It feels like such a mouthful... "these areas are private, just for you. No one else should look or touch, other than for diaper changes/wiping, or to help you get clean, or if you're at the doctor and someone on your body safety team is there with you to keep you safe...." (Not to mention trying not to make it HIS responsibility to protect himself, and making sure he knows he wouldn't be in trouble if something were to happen to him/grown ups know better/etc). It's just so dang complicated at this age!!! And it's only recently that anyone is included in "wiping/changing" other than his four people (his body safety team).

3. Do I need to be worried about him holding it so long? So far it hasn't caused any issues but like... I know holding it isn't healthy! Are there any solutions here?

4. Soon he will likely be doing full days at preschool sometimes. How do we get him to not hold it all day!?!

And, yes - I always talk to him before leaving him with anyone else: "babysitter* will change your diaper or help you wipe if you go on the potty chair while I'm gone. It should just be a quick wipe!" "Preschool teacher may have to change your diaper or help you wipe at school today ok?"

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

Is he in pullups

1 Jahr

Antworten

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

23. August 2024

Email I got.

I wanted to let you know that I didn't schedule a follow up meeting for today like we had talked about because we had 10 successful days of pooping on the potty (even while at the beach house and traveling)! A has been doing a great job so for now I think we feel okay with everything. I really appreciate your support and help throughout this entire process and I will definitely reach out if we have other issues down the line with anything.

I just love my job!!!! Potty training is an amazing milestone.

Olivia Ouellette

5. August 2024

I need help! I am so frustrated with washing poop underwear daily. My almost 4 year old is amazing with going pee on the potty. However, getting him to poop on the potty is impossible. It's not a constipation or fear issue. I believe it's a "giving up control" issue. I need ALL of the tips. The only thing that worked (and it happened once, yesterday) was I kept him naked and he was on the couch and he yelled I have to poop and went on the potty. Is this what I need to keep doing?

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

Have you thought about getting a potty training consultant? This is a long running habit at this point. You got caught in the trap of treating clothes like a diaper. Stop allowing him undies and pants to poop in. You really need to prioritize potty training. Stay at home and keep him bare butt. The older they are, the harder and more time it takes to break this. If you want professional help, feel free to message me. I have been doing this for 6 years full time. My job is a shit show! Lol

1 Jahr

Antworten

Sarah Benefield

13. August 2024

Hello! I have twin 2 year old boys and I want to start introducing them to potty training, I know these things take times. Any times and tricks? I want to let know I am a single mom who is doing this by herself 95% of the time their dad get them on weekends and will just follow my schedule with them if I have one.

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

What are u using for the potty training

1 Jahr

Antworten

Bailey Hoberg

13. August 2024

How to help my 2.5 yo poop on the toilet? He's definitely scared and will hold it until he's in a pull up.

Olivia Ouellette

This woman I follow on Instagram said that there's usually 3 big reasons why boys won't poop on the big toilet. 1. They don't... Mehr anzeigen

1 Jahr

Antworten

Gergana Ganeva

18. August 2024

Hi, my toddler is 3 year and 1 month old boy. He goes to the toilet and pees when he is told. But he doesn't tell me when he needs to go and pees and poops on the floor. When we are at home I leave him butt naked and when we are outside I only put his pants on without a diaper(and he pees and poops in his pants as well). I only put him in a diaper when he sleeps. I am worried because he has to start kindergarten in a month and I don't... Mehr anzeigen

Laura Michelle Nielsen

Try putting a treat basket on the back of the toilet and tell him when pees and poops in the toilet and only in the toilet he ... Mehr anzeigen

1 Jahr

Antworten

Tasha Ann

28. Juli 2024

Hi! I'm new to this group. I recently joined because my boy is having such a hard time learning the potty. Both times we tried he would hold his wee in for hours on end. He would sit on the potty desperate for a wee. We blew bubbles, read stories and nothing would come out. He would end up having a wee after hours and we would put him on the potty mid wee. After 8 days he complained of having a sore tummy. He looked in so much discomf... Mehr anzeigen

Ana Aguirre

What did you do to help you? My son is holding his pee too

1 Jahr

Antworten

Benny Le Crab

15. August 2024

What is the best car potty seat?

Lexi Plantz

A water bottle 🤔

1 Jahr

Antworten

Toddler-Essentials

3. August 2024

Look at that new range! Amazing amazing colour range and all featuring our mascot Vincent! Who will soon be available as a soft toy... buy your potties now on Amazon... #mo... Mehr anzeigen

Chantal Foster

• Folgen

12. Juli 2024

When did you all start having your child use a urinal and how did you introduce them to it?

Tabitha Naegle

Had them start peeing outside so they got the concept, aim came eventually. One kid took to it on his own, the other from watching dad do it a few times. Biggest struggle was reinforcing not touching the soap or pad at bottom of urinal

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

22. Juli 2024

.

My 6 1/2 year old has been dry at night for about a year and no pull ups at night. Recently he was wetting the bed every night and frequently urinating small amounts during the day. Took him to pediatrician and they said it was constipation-and to do several days of MiraLAX. (They also ruled out diabetes and other things when we took him in) we did several days of MiraLAX and I believe he's completely cleaned out but is still wetting the bed and asking for pull ups. We did give him pull ups while this was happening. But since he's no longer constipated should he still be needed pull ups? I feel like some of it might be just in his head and he still thinks he may need them or being lazy and not getting up to pee at night. Thought!?

Shayla Sanders

19. Juli 2024

.

So my sons 3 1/2, I got him fully pee potty trained, but poop omg he will not poop in the toilet for the life of him. He will lock the bathroom and go and poop in his underwear. Or go outside(backyard) and poop in his underwear. He has Lego kits and a monster jam truck he gets if he poops in the toilet he pooped in the toilet twice. But not for a while.

Whatttt can I do to get him 100% fully potty trained ?

Pic so I can hopefully get some help

Laura Michelle Nielsen

We put a treat basket on the back of the toilet and told my grandson every time he pooped in the potty he could pick out a treat. It worked great for him. So just a thought for you.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Meghan Watson

18. Juli 2024

I'm at a loss and need help/ support.

My son turned 3 in May and still wants nothing to do with the potty it's like he is traumatized and screams when we put him on.

Yesterday my mother in law was watching him at our house and had him in underwear and he went a couple times on the potty by himself. We showed we were so proud of him and rewarded him.

Today he is a completely different kid and wants nothing to do with it to the point where he was in underwear at the dinner table and started getting really uncomfortable. We told him several times to go to the potty and that it's okay, just let it out on the potty. He refused and was uncontrollably crying. We ended up having him leave the dinner table and wanted him to take a deep breath. He released all over (it was a lot that he was holding)

I jsut don't know what to do. He's a completely different person in underwear and when we talk about the potty. He's not himself. He was practically hyperventilating. The other thing is, he tells us when he has to poop and tells us when he is peeing... he knows what he's doing.

I just feel like we're doing something wrong or he's delayed.

Any advise and support would be greatly appreciated! TIA

Chantal Foster

• Folgen

16. Juli 2024

My son has been doing really well with potty training with underwear on but when I put him on pull ups he doesn't tell me when he has to go he just goes in the pull up. How do I get him to stop that? When he goes to school I don't want him to wear underwear in case he has an accident.

Christina Fliakos

Accidents WILL happen. Speak with the daycare teachers about how they handle potty training and accidents.

My son started learning last October just over 2. In that class they changed his underpants with an accident and sent home the soiled ones. They had designated potty times with the kids. They would put him in a pull up at naptime. He probably had an accident 2-3x a week or more sometimes in the very beginning. But he learned.

Now he's in young 3 year old class and no more pull ups. We have an accident MAYBE once every other week.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Emilie Drummond

12. Juli 2024

My lil boy is 3 and potty trained lately he's hiding in his wee ... don't know why would this be serious??

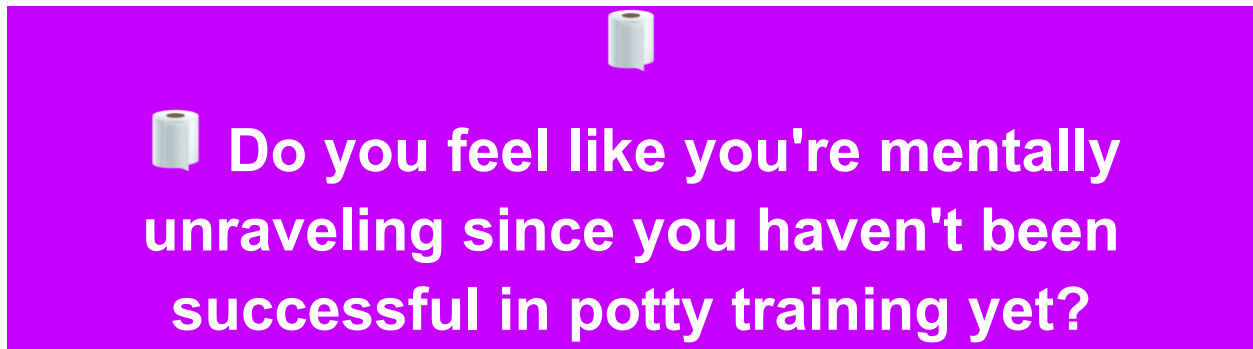

Joanna Flora

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

11. Juli 2024

Anonymes Mitglied

9. Juli 2024

My 3.5 yr old has been potty trained for over 6 months now. At the beginning he was a little resistant to pooping on the potty, but now he flat out refuses. He asks for a nappy or will sit on the ground and poop his pants. He won't push out a poop on the potty, even while wearing a nappy. It seems like he can only push a poop out when sitting on the ground? Has anyone got any tips for this?

Tanya Trelenberg

If you don't have a squatty potty I would highly suggest. Some can even change in height for the littles and having the legs at that angle helps a lot. When the accident happens, I would have him help you clean it up, and go sit on the toilet for a few minutes after each accident to keep trying to go, or just to sit there and have him know this is where we go poop. Stop giving a pullup, that's just confusing for them. If he chooses to poop his pants, he helps clean it and flush it down the toilet when he's done sitting on the toilet.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Chantal Foster

• Folgen

5. Juli 2024

.

My son is 4 yo will be 5 in January. Every school I contact says he has to be potty trained in order to attend. I have introduced the potty to my son since he was 1 years old. He will go to the potty right before bath time but he fights me when he wakes up and throughout the day. I can never catch the in between. How often do you encourage them to go potty?

Kierstynne Alice

I bought my son underwear and put them on him instead of diapers. They don't like the feeling of being wet because it's uncomfortable. It's quite a few messes to clean up since it takes a few days but my son got the hang of it within a week.. once he started to use the potty I would give him a treat and praise him for doing good, and as he did it more often I cut down on the treats and just stuck with the praise until he was fully trained!

1 Jahr

Antworten

Joanna Flora

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

·8. Juli 2024

FREE TRAINING to help with Potty Training! Live in Puzzled Parents Unite: Potty Training Edition

Chrissie Mullins

21. August 2019

If anyone here wants to join a message chat group about potty training say me!!

To laugh with one another and not be totally boring Potty training your little one alone share stories with one another.

Dont be shy let's do this together dont give up!!

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

Me

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

6. Juli 2024

I am at a loss and feel defeated 😞 I'm retraining my 3.5 year old to use the potty. He was cooperative when he was 2, but then he reverted back to his old ways. What is even tougher is that he cannot communicate with me due to his speech delay. He does have good bladder control and I did the three day method. He peed once of the three days in the potty, but then he starts to scream and yell like he's afraid to sit down. Idk if it's cuz of the flushing or he might fall is what he is thinking. I have to encourage him to give him a lollipop or give him his tablet to watch videos. I've shown him books and sang him him potty songs and he is just too strong willed. I know he knows he can do it, but he is always fighting me and doesn't want to go. I've tried so hard not to lose my patience with him, but I'm literally at my wits end to breaking down and getting too frustrated with myself and with him and I know he's trying, but it's just been sooooo effing hard!! Idk what else to do, like I said he's good at holding it for at least a maximum of 6 hours in his underwear or naked from the waist down, but refuses to go in the potty for both peeing and pooping, but once he has his pull-up on his goes in it right away. Especially how do I show him how to wipe his own bottom? Should I just stop completely putting him in pull-ups? But the thing is that I don't want him to hold it for more than he could and then he gets really sick. Any tips at all? I am really getting frustrated with this situation and I don't want to put the blame on my son at all. I am really trying to go at his pace and his time I feel like he is really testing my patience and I know he's ready he's just too stubborn and not playing dumb even though he cannot fully talk yet. Any advice I am willing to take just anything! Please I am really losing my marbles and trying so hard not to break down while writing this post. I just can't, I know I am not alone on this journey and I just really need to hear some positive feedback and support from fellow mamas that are seriously going through the same thing as I am. Thank you for hearing me vent here. I just want some sort of miracle to happen that I don't have to feel so pressured towards my son and so much anxiety for myself. Thank you!

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

U went to to help u with tips

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

1. Juli 2024

Any tips on starting toilet training my son is 23 months and points to his diaper when he pees or poops I ask him did you poop he says yes. Any tips on the 3 day toilet training or going full bum naked. I am so lost where to start and what products would you recommend to buy for my son. We currently have pull up and the Toilet Seat with Built-In Toddler Potty Training Seat what rewards should I use and what waterproof underwear do you recommend

Tanya Trelenberg

I didn't use any method in general I just let them be nude with access to a kid potty in the main areas of our home as the bathroom is up a level (hard to get to on time for the littles) and then once they were doing well we started going up to the potty. Sometimes I'd set like 20-30 minute timers, other times I'd just ask them a lot if they had to go.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Joanna Flora

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

1. Juli 2024

PARENTS OF TODDLERS NEEDING TO POTTY TRAIN:

I'm doing a live training on Wednesday 7/3 at 1pm EST.

Topic: Potty Training and how it connects to your child's mental health!

Replay is always available. LMK if you're interested in watching!

Anonymes Mitglied

30. Juni 2024

Not sure if this is the right group for this but maybe some potty training moms with older kids can help. My almost 6 year old who has been potty trained for years at this point is still wearing pull ups at night. I know this is developmentally normal. However, he has asked several times when he can stop wearing them. He has also made comments about not wanting anyone outside our household knowing he wears them which is just breaking my heart for him to have any embarrassment around it. I've started seeing ads for things like super undies. Has anyone had any luck with any sort of product like this or should we be waking him up maybe to go? I truly have no idea how to help or even if any of this would matter until his body is ready. 💔

Jay Palmer-Janvier

Take them off. Set a timer for every two hours and wake him up. Gradually increase by 30 minutes weekly until he goes longer stretches.

Help him by having a liquid cut off before bed. Mine is one hour. That includes water based fruit and veggies

You guys can do it

1 Jahr

Antworten

Leah Horrocks

• Folgen

17. Juni 2024

Okay I really need help! My 3.5 year old son HAS to get potty trained. I have been putting this off so long because he's been super unwilling. But I'm tired of waiting and I'm tired of awful poop diapers. I homeschool my oldest who is 5. We are finally into summer so I have a little more time to focus on potty training my middle. He is disabled and doesn't walk (another reason I wasn't pushing him or pressuring him). But he will use this excuse now and tell me that he doesn't want to use the potty until he walks (which may or may not happen for him) 😞

I always tell him that he doesn't have to do that in order to use the potty.

So I have been more stern with him over the last two days. I have put him on the potty and told him he has to do something before he can get off. My thinking was that surely he will have to go and use the potty eventually. Nope 😞 this boy is just holding it all day! I'm concerned he's going to be all blocked up because on a normal day he will poop like 5 or more times a day (no joke) and yesterday he didn't poop but one time and that was when he had his diaper on for a short period. Same thing today, he only pooped a tiny bit this morning and when I put him on the potty he is just sitting there not doing anything.

Has anyone else experienced this? what do I do with this boy?? 😞 my oldest was not this hard to potty train. I started with him at 18 months. He would still go in his pull up from time to time, but he would also use the potty. He was fully trained by 3 when I took the pull ups away completely. I also have a 2 year old daughter that I need to potty train this summer. if we have anymore, I am really considering doing elimination communication so they are exposed to the potty from the start!

Christina Roberts Hargrove

Do you work with an occupational therapist? If so, I'd work with that therapist as to how to get babe potty trained. This sounds like a specialized situation that calls for a specialized response!

1 Jahr

Antworten

Christina Roberts Hargrove

28. Juni 2024

Hello all! Questions + concern. Background: We trained my 3.5 year old boy with the 3 day method and yesterday was the last day. He did great! Stayed dry all the 2nd and 3rd day. The only thing he didn't do during the 3 days was poop, despite all of the high fiber food we provided. He's finally pooping today (so far not in the potty yet, though he's being rushed there every time) and now he's having pee accidents again, too. I had to go back to work today, myself, so stay-at-home-dad is having to deal with it all today. We've set up rewards for pooping in the potty but I'm concerned because he's having pee accidents again. Question: Is this normal or is this a regression? My concern is that my going back to work today somehow screwed things up. Would love to hear any stories of success after this kind of thing happening!

Joanna Flora

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

15. Juni 2024

Admin, Please Delete if not allowed... I could not find the link to the rules.

I will be doing a Free event on Pre Potty Training this week. I hope this could be helpful to some of the momma's in here. The training will be live in Puzzled Parents Unite: Potty Training Edition

Anonymes Mitglied

6. Juni 2024

My soon to be 3 year in August doesn't tell me he needs to potty. How do I fix this? Now he goes everytime I take him to the potty just want tell me he needs to go.

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

What are u using

1 Jahr

Antworten

Ciara Ponce

2. Juni 2024

Need advice. My three year old has been being potty training since he was 2 1/2. He stands up and pees in the potty no problem, but he refused to poop in the potty. I have tried every tactic. Sticker chart, prize bucket, promises of a special gift or ice cream treat. I try showing his little sister sitting on the potty and make a big deal about pretend poop so he will want to get the same positive reaction. But when I sit him on the potty he cries,screams, throws tantrums and holds it in. I try to wait till I catch him sneaking off to go to put him on the potty and he just holds it in. As soon as I put his diaper on he goes in less than five minutes. At this point I feel like he doesn't go poop out of pure defiance. How do I get him to want to go on the potty?

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

As a potty training consultant, there is a direct correlation between refusing to sit to pee and refusing to poop on the potty. Because he is not used to sitting he is having a hard time relaxing on the potty. Make a new solid boundaries, he can choose how he is using the potty once he is getting all the poop and pee in the potty.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Kimberly Reid

24. Mai 2024

So, it's that time for my boy's. I'm beginning potty training on my 2 1/2 year old twin boys. Send help because I am a fish out of water. 🤔

Stephanie Trimble

3 day potty training worked wonders for my little guy!

1 Jahr

Antworten

Stephanie Trimble

30. Mai 2024

We had great success with 3 day potty training with my 2.5 yr old BUT, we are going to be traveling soon. We plan to take my son's potty for the road but I'm a little worried about when we go to restaurants and to do activities. Does anyone have tips for public toilets? 🤔 😬

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

28. Mai 2024

Jamie's newest addition was released today!!!! I am the Liz Hansen that is mentioned in the new neurodivergant section. ♡♡♡♡

Ashleigh Martin

19. Mai 2024

My son who is 2 years and about

2 months has been potty training for about 2 months. He is doing really well (minus pooping), but the last few days he has had more accidents. He will go potty for several seconds and be done, but then have an accident 15 minutes later.

I think I need to have him keep trying for a bit longer, but any other suggestions or advice?

Elizabeth Schofield

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

Do not go back . Have him be bare bum for a few days and go back to taking him . Show him , no more diapers .

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

16. Mai 2024

My diapered toddler doesn't know how to squat and poop.

He is almost 24 months old. But for the last 8 months has struggled to poop. He won't squat. When he has to go, he sits flat on the floor and refuses help when we try to get him to squat. This leaves him pooping maybe 5-8 times a day little pebbles because he can't get it out. Also ends up with bad diaper rash.

His poop is not hard. It's a fine consistency. He just sits flat ... Mehr anzeigen

Anonymes Mitglied

15. Mai 2024

.

Any tips for me to start toilet training (no potty) my son is 23 months and is telling me when his got a poo it must go toilet. Is he ready? Any tips on the 3 day toilet training. I think I'll struggle as we not home all day, we like driving and window shopping, just to keep busy but if I can win in 3 days I'll attempt

Jenna Downton

13. Mai 2024

.

Hi my son who is 2 years and 3 months. Is he ready to start potty training. This morning he took off his nappy and said wee wee. I put him in the toilet and potty but nothing he then went into his bedroom without nappy and done a wee on the floor and did a 🦌 inside his Lego box. Is he ready or to Early. Thank you

Alisha Dukes

8. Mai 2024

.

Hey everyone 🙏

So my 2 year old son will be going commando tomorrow for the 1st day of potty training. Any tips as far as pot placement or tips on keeping things as clean as possible. Of course I know there will be accidents but it would be nice to have less pee everywhere as much as possible 😊

Jessica Biber

1. Determine what his cues are. Does he freeze? Does he get quiet? Does he wiggle his legs? Anytime you see them, take him right to the potty.
2. I recommend the frog urinal. My son absolutely loveeeeee peeing in it.
3. Set a timer. Every 30 minutes let him try.
4. Don't use pull ups or any form of undies until he can consistently go naked. Anything tight will resemble a diaper and he will go back to what is "comfortable." After a few days, you can move to loose basketball shorts.
5. If he's scared to use potty, I recommend a potty friend. Any action figure or toy he loves that he can show how to go potty.
6. Show yourself and son some grace. Accidents will happen and it will be frustrating, but he will get it. Just stay consistent and positive.

I have ran mine to the potty mid poop... it's a journey! Haha

Good luck momma! 😊

1 Jahr

Antworten

Erin Thurston

8. Mai 2024

HELP!

We are going on a week and 1 day of potty training my 20 month old, I've been doing the naked method and just bringing his potty in every room we're in. Although only sometimes he'll let me know that he has to pee he's still barely having accidents and will sit on it to pee when I just guide him. Poop on the other hand is a struggle, the first few days he was having accidents on the floor and saying "uh oh" then when we would sit him on the potty after to finish he would never go or any other time I sensed he had to, now we're on night three of him not having any accidents all day and then going about 20 minutes after we put him down for bed in his pull up, any tips!? Idk if I should just give up and return to it later, I don't want it now disturbing his sleep as he's been such a great sleeper since 3 months old. Any tips and tricks would be greatly appreciated!!!! We haven't left the house at all and I'm starting to go stir crazy!

Candace Pelham

Do not use pull ups!! It will delay potty training. At night put on the training underwear with the plastic underwear over them. If your're not, during the day take him about every 15-20 minutes to the potty.

1 Jahr

Antworten
Bearbeitet

Anonymes Mitglied

8. Mai 2024

.

My son is 5 and is completely toilet trained but last few months wees rhe bed quite regularly. What is the best mattress protector or iv heard there is a special waterproof sheet you can get ? Ours is not doing the job anymore and it's starting to go through to the mattress so looking for something better

Thank you

Anonymes Mitglied

5. Mai 2024

.

HELP!!!!

My 5.5 year old is still wetting at night he never wakes up ever to go to the bathroom and pees through pull-ups all the time because he's got so much pee. I want to stop buying pull-ups and I want to have him wake up at night to go potty. He gets frequent bowel impaction so I can't cut out liquids at a certain time. I'm at a loss for what to do because even if I wake him up at 10, 2, 4, & 6 he still is soaked. I've taken him to the chiropractor. I've taken him to the doctor. They keep saying we don't worry about nighttime wetting until they're six well I'm sick of it. 🙄

Stephanie Mulhall

My almost 7yr old still does this..we get him up before we go to bed each night. We stopped pullups years ago

1 Jahr

Antworten

Marissa Ruvalcaba

5. Mai 2024

My 3 year old boy is really adaptable with potty training and took to the idea well. We are going on 3 weeks now. We have done a potty timer the majority of the time and even the first day he went on the potty almost every time. We had a few accidents the first day but they dwindled down to 1-2 a day now. He still can't independently tell me he needs to go but he's almost reliably on 1 hour intervals now with sometimes going up to 2 hours not going.

But if we don't take him to the potty he will go in whatever. We avoided pull ups. Started with bare bottom and now we are just in regular undies.

He's definitely shown he can do the potty and isn't scared of it but just can't seem to understand telling us. He is speech delayed but we gave him pictures & sign and he isn't utilizing either form to tell us. What more could I do? How long does it take for them to independently state the need to go.

Amy Neal Ingram

In my opinion, the average child doesn't have the cognitive ability at 2-4yo to consistently recognize the signs of having to ... Mehr anzeigen

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

2. Mai 2024

.

My son is almost 3 and not having it with being potty trained 🤔👧 I have been working on it for while now. I'm so embarrassed. And on top of that I have my 2nd baby due any day now. Anyone have similar situation? Now I have 2 in diapers/pull ups! How long did it take to get your first one trained after the 2nd was born?

Ksoosha Poradek

He may not be ready? Is he showing signs? Such as interesting in the toilet? Wanting to be in the bathroom with you when you go? Etc. I started potty training mine 2 weeks after he turned 2. For the first time I just filled him up on liquids and sat him on a potty chair and gave him his games/favorite TV show. After 45 minutes he peed and I praised him alot! I just kept it up. We did regress but went back at it. Went from diapers to pull ups and then finally to underwear. He had a few accidents as normal.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Socialnetwork1987.tech

2. Mai 2024

.

Good morning Guys

Anonymes Mitglied

2. Mai 2024

.

Is there a potty training program I can purchase that doesn't do the naked method? And just goes straight to underwear? Thanks

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I help try pull-ups

1 Jahr

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

26. April 2024

.

Ok so my son will be 4 in 2 months and he has mastered peeing on the toilet but not poop. He's gone like 2x on it. Idk what to do anymore. This is my first kid so please be nice because i have hardly any family or friends to ask for advice.

We do put a pull up on him for naps and at night and like clock work he goes poop in it either at night or during nap. Best thing I can think of is to keep him in underwear like we do during the d... Mehr anzeigen

Linda Phelan

Yes give him a stool softner, it will help him , stool is meant to be soft and mushy, refer to the Bristol stool chart and th... Mehr anzeigen

1 Jahr

Antworten

Socialnetwork1987.tech

27. April 2024

Good afternoon my Facebook family

Jessica Sima

26. April 2024

Hi - I'm new here. Today is day one of potty training my 2.5 year old son. He can hold his pee! This morning, he held it for 6.5 hours before having an accident. We gave him lots of liquids and put him on the potty frequently. He did manage to poop on the potty (I was shocked!), but no pee. He had one more pee accident. Is there anything I can do differently to get him to pee? We blew bubbles, sang, snuggled, ate a snack! I'm not giving up (obviously), but is there anything else I'm not thinking of? Thank you so much.

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

Is he in pullups

1 Jahr

Antworten

Socialnetwork1987.tech

26. April 2024

Good evening Guys welcome to Socialnetwork1987.tech page ...

Anonymes Mitglied ☐ fühlt sich besiegt.

26. April 2024

Okay.. so my son is about 2.5... we are trying to start potty training (have been for a while actually) and he's even told us that he has a dirty diaper and even asks to be changed sometimes after he poops.. he has sat on the potty and used it before (just pee) and we clapped and encouraged him.. but I've been trying to get him to at least just sit on the potty recently and he refuses.. any tips would be so so helpful..

Sarah-jane Wile

23. April 2024

Not really potty training related but nighttime dryness related

Hoping this helps someone else

My little man's been daytime dry since 4

However he's now 7 and was wet at night still some nights soaked him his pullups his sheets everything wet

We spoke to gp he referred to nursing team

Had a 45 min telephone call where she went over things gave some tips we were doing most anyways

- *take away fluids 2 hours before sleep

- *have him double pee so he would pee we would do stories and he would pee again and then monitor on and into bed

- *plenty of fluid during the day as much as we could in the AM

- *taking away all pullups

- * buying a bedwetting alarm

i was hesitant as he's very naughty if his sleep is broken but he was off for easter so we 1 day shipped one off amazon

Were day 18 into it now and for 6 nights he's slept all night and woken up dry

Going to keep it till he's been dry a month or so

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I have a question

1 Jahr

Antworten

Joanna Flora

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

21. April 2024

.

Happy Sunday!!! Figured this might be helpful for some parents in this group!

Marissa Ruvalcaba

19. April 2024

.

Hi guys I'm running on 1.5 weeks of potty training and my boy peed on my couch. I have "whip it" and I've wiped it down a handful of time and I still smell that pee smell. What can I use?

I don't have an upholstery machine so I'm stuck with rags

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

Hey, potty training consultant here. Use 50/50 vinegar water. Drench it. It will stink when wet but when it dries you won't smell anything.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Rebecca Dilley

13. April 2024

My almost 2 year old shows signs in being interested in using the potty and wanting to be done with diapers. He grabs his potty to sit on but has only actually peed on the potty a handful of times, he grabs himself when he has to pee, wants to wear undies and I've noticed longer periods with dry diapers.

I've tried him naked and wearing underwear. When he's naked he knows it's coming and gets upset and runs towards me but then if I put him on the potty he gets upset and doesn't want to and pees on the floor minutes later and gets so upset about it.

I know he's young but like I said, he shows so many signs of wanting to use the potty. Is him getting upset a normal reaction? Do I keep pushing through or just wait it out?

I think I just saw so many potty training in 3 days when I was looking into it all and not sure if I just set unreal expectations for us. Any other recommendations to help?

Sarah Trevethan

My son used to cry when he'd wee , so we spent a day or two just leaving him go and reassuring him that it was OK, no talk of the potty at all. Next we got bubbles and encouraged him to sit on the potty and we'd blow bubbles and eventually he'd wee on the potty and we'd give lots of praise. A week on now he'll just go and sit on the potty and wee himself. We still aren't there with number 2s. Some children just can't be trained in 3 or 4 days

1 Jahr

Antworten

Lindsay Feagans

• Folgen

15. April 2024

My son is 8. He still wants to go on himself. He fought us about it till this week. He's even got in trouble at school for it. School sent dfs to our house to make sure he wasn't abuse. The closed the case. Nothing we did. He just don't want to go. He used to get constipated but he don't now. School been helping him and we have too. He has a doctor appointment this Friday. I think it's behaviorial. He's always peed in toilet just not like to poop in toilet.

Any advice much appreciated.

Margaret Hardy

Regardless of cause, most of these kids do so much better with aggressive persistent treatment of constipation. Even when kids are having multiple soft poops a day, nearly every kid with encopresis shows that they are super backed up with poop on x-ray.

Maybe ask doc for an x-ray - specifically ask about stool sitting in the rectum, as i recall (per MOP book). Healthy kids tend to not have much poop sitting in the rectum, but kids with encopresis often do... Anyone with better familiarity with MOP, please feel free to correct me!

1 Jahr

Antworten
Bearbeitet

Anonymes Mitglied

17. April 2024

My son is 2.5yr and I'm eagerly wanting to train him I know I know wait till he's ready. My daughter was so easy but I'm finding him super hard I honestly think he is ready and is starting preschool in the next week im hoping that will help. He knows all about toilets and all sees us all going all the time no privacy in this house but he just thinks it's a game. IL put him in the potty or toilet before the shower and won't go then deliberately goes in the shower likes stands there ready for it and laughs thinks it's a great game I try to sit him on the potty mid wee but just waits till back in the shower. I don't have many boys in the family grew up with girls no idea where to start. He knows when his nappy needs changing knows when he needs to poo as he stands still and does it.

Emilie Drummond

4. April 2024

Started potty training my lil boy he's 3 be four in October he's absolutely flying it, tells me when he needs to go takes his nappy off in the morning now my next step is what to do next? Buy pull ups? What will I do when I'm out no nappy just leave accidents happen or? And he's in creche so would need to know what to do their aswell.

Thankyou 😊

Rebecca Gallup

No pull ups they're confusing

3 days at home with no pants on

2 Jahre

Antworten

Breezy Wright

10. April 2024

Hey! Need some help.

I have a 4 year old boy who is pee trained only at home. He refuses to use the potty at daycare. The doctor said he's just not comfortable using the potty outside of home but even when I try to take him to the potty at daycare he refuses. My babysitter will ask him periodically throughout the day but he refuses until he has an accident on himself. Idk what to do?!

Also, I'm still trying to poop train him. It's hard because he does not poop on a schedule at all! And if I'm not watching him like a hawk he will go off and poop and then come back and ask to be changed. 😞

Any tips will help! Thanks!

Elizabeth Schofield

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I'd have him wear loose pants no undies . I'd also inform him he will be doing his clean up . This seems behavioral. He knows what to do and he won't do it . The consequence is clean up . Tell him what he is to do , if he refuses to he doesn't get to go places until he can poop . He will want to go to the park , well he has to use the potty no exceptions.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Camille Ford

10. April 2024

I need help. Advice. Suggestions.

We're only on day 4 of potty training my 30 month old, but things are heading from bad to worse.

Day 1/2 we went naked and would have him sit on the potty every hour or so. The only time we successfully got pee in the potty was after he already starting peeing on the floor. Not bad for first couple days

However, days 3/4 have been AWFUL. When we tell him it's time to try sitting on the potty he'll say no and run away.

I've tried only prompting when I'm certain he had to go, but he still is refusing. If I pick him up and set him on the potty, he'll get up after 5 seconds and say all done and then pee on the floor 10 seconds later. I'll calmly and firmly tell him no, pee goes in the potty.

When he's showing signs he has to pee, I've tried asking him "where do we put our pee" to which he'll point to his potty.

I have books, signs, songs, games, treats, to try to lengthen time he's sitting on the potty, but they've lost their novelty and now I'm lost.

I think he gets it. I think he can do it. I think he's just refusing. He's stubborn in all aspects of life, but I'm not sure where to go from here.

If I reset and try in a couple weeks, will he just be more strong willed? If I move forward, How do I continue if he's just refusing?

Amber Rich

I used cookies and bribery. I would also sit with my son in the bathroom. When he did something in the potty I over exaggerated the praise and gave him a reward. Before potty training I would put his poo from his diaper into the toilet and let him flush. Would say by poopoo lol. He's been trained for almost 9 months and still does it. If he is in any kind of daycare I had him go with the kids who were potty trained so he could see how the process works. Peer pressure can be a good thing lol. Hang in there mama. You got this.

1 Jahr

Antworten

Sarah Stephenson

6. April 2024

.

Why is it even with a baby Bjorn potty seat insert there is still pee on the toilet seat when it's removed? How is this possible?

Maggie Kilday

It doesn't get any better as they get older. My youngest son is 8 next month and still gets pee on the seat. His aim is awful 🙄

1 Jahr

Antworten

Ashleigh Martin

6. April 2024

Me again...

My 25 month old throws a fit about 50% of the time when trying to sit on the potty. Do I push through and try to get him used to it or go back to pull ups and try again in a couple of months?

Elizabeth Schofield

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

Got the oh crap potty training .

1 Jahr

Antworten

Ashleigh Martin

4. April 2024

Day 6 of potty training my 25 month old. He has done pretty well until today. He hasn't peed or pooped on the potty at all. He's definitely scared to poop, which is hindering his ability to pee at times. Has also started not wanting to sit on the potty.

Needing some positive vibes and support that he will get the hang of it. Any tips or tricks to help

Adrienne Donovan

1. April 2024

My son has been potty trained since October. (3.5) And, recently, he is having accidents. It is only poop. We went back to the basics over spring break and he was accident-free for 2 weeks. And, he had an accident at school last Wednesday. And, now he is having at least one BM accident a day.

Any suggestions?

Margaret Hardy

Keep chronic constipation on your radar. Even kids with one or more soft poops a day can be very constipated - ie rectum is full of poop. The soft stuff can squeeze around the hard stuff. When the rectum is very full and stretched out, controlling poo becomes difficult. It can also cause pee accidents when the rectum presses on and irritates the bladder.

2 Jahre

Antworten
Bearbeitet

Ashley Edwards

31. März 2024

My almost 2yr old (20months old/2 in august) showing some signs

Being interested in the potty, flushing, holds it at night some times, asked to go on the potty one day.

I work at a daycare and every couple hours is potty time unless kiddo asks then of course they get to go.

Since the day he asked to go onto the potty. I have been putting him on there at work every couple hours when it's potty time and then actually yesterday he just went in his diapers. Pull up as usual. Today I've been taking him every 15 minutes and he's doing really good. Only had one accident and a pull up and it was poop. Peed in the potty four times. And poo in potty 1x today.

I have tomorrow off as well so i can do this again when I go back to work, it will be back to two hours

So I'm concerned about that hindering . Also, wondering about the fact that I give him things when he's on the toilet to keep him on there for just a minute longer because I don't want him to get mad. I don't wanna make him be on the potty. I don't want it to be a bad experience. It just keeps him occupied

But then he will pee, and his toilet sings if it actually gets on the sensor, and I of course act excited and he just looks at me like I don't. He really knows that he's peeing, but he will get off and look

So I don't know what to do differently if anything at all. [OBJJOB]

Miranda Parker

19. März 2024

I'm getting so frustrated with my son. He will be 3 in August. We did the no diaper method. No undies. He did perfectly fine. Eventually we introduced undies and he just straight up quit wanting to use the potty. Pretty much had to restart potty training. He will do 100% naked but with anything on he will hide and . Pee in his undies while sitting right beside me. He knows how to use the toilet. I mean how long can a regression go on for ?!  I'm feeling hopeless. I refuse to go back to diapers. He hasn't been wearing them for about 4-5 months now.

Kiley Sommerfeldt

you could be stressing him out with your frustration, energy is everything. he doesn't need to be completely potty trained by 3 so I would just slow down and stick to a routine, take him to the bathroom every 30 min if need be and after every meal and before bedtime and as soon as he wakes up. Stick to the routine and eventually he'll get the hang of it and it'll be normal for him.

2 Jahre

Antworten

Brigitte Elgie

20. März 2024

.

Hi Moms 😊

I am struggling with night training!!! I have been looking into a wireless bedwetting alarm, the discussions around alarm training seem as though it is a successful technique. A common theme in reviews generally is that it works well for girls. Has anyone tried a bedwetting alarm (any kind) and was it successful for boys?

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I can help u

2 Jahre

Antworten

Lisa Lisa

20. März 2024

.

Does anyone have tips on training a toddler boy with autism?

Richard Murray

If he's verbal, you can use pretty well any method. I like the bathtub because it's sensorial rather than cognitive to start.

2 Jahre

Antworten

Kate Hanley

27. März 2024

Hey all. This is my 3rd potty trainer but they are all so different. I did a week of nudie and it went great. We added pants yesterday and zero accidents but also no 🍌 and then today no 🍌 until a little in his pants and he FLIPPPPPED out. My husband had him sit on the toilet and he just screamed and screamed and screamed.

How do I help him through this? He's been trying for a couple days sitting for longer just to see if he can go etc. I ended up just sneaking a suppository that we have for my withholder in when I was wiping him and got it all out. But i don't want to go through that again

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

Inbox me I help u

2 Jahre

Antworten

Lisa Lisa

27. März 2024

Do the admins here monitor the group often? Would like to speak to one please

Joanna Flora

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

26. März 2024

Im doing a free training on Toilet Scaries on 4/3 at 1pm EST. DM me if you think this might be helpful for you and I'll send you the info!

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I'm interested

2 Jahre

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

20. März 2024

Hi mamas how long it's ok to co-shower with boys ? I'm a single working mama it's just me and my 4 year old he will be 5 in June. He loves taking showers or hot bath with me it's unavoidable for me especially in the busy mornings. I actually want him to have positive views on the human body I just want him to know that women comes in different shapes it's not something they will see on the internet at the same time I'm concerned about stopping the showers with him ? I wonder how will it affect him if I stop all of a sudden or should I wear a bathing suit now ? because he still needs help in the shower...

Kristina Moore

I think you'll know based on him and his maturity. My only concern would be if he says something that could potentially be embarrassing to you. Kids say the craziest stuff! Lol. But between now and him turning 5, you could start giving him a bath and letting him know this will be the new way of doing things. I never showered with my kids. They always took baths. Them playing in the bath actually gives me 20 minutes to decompress before bedtime routine.

2 Jahre

Antworten

Joanna Flora

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

·14. März 2024

I am doing a Free training about night time potty training. I wanted to offer the invite if anyone is need of support, PM me!

Kamila Dent

Interested please

2 Jahre

Antworten

Joanna Flora

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

5. März 2024

On a scale of 1-10 (10 being the highest) How badly do you want your little one Potty Trained?

Lynn Azarcon Cariño

Can i put 20?!?!?. lol .. this my last kid and will throw a party if we can get him fully trained. We are not even close.

😞 he will be 4 in May.

2 Jahre

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

19. März 2024

My 4.5 year old has come a long way. I'm very grateful. He goes to the potty, on his own, for 1 and 2, every time, without being asked. When we go places he stays dry.

However, when we are home and he is wearing anything, pull up, underwear, pants, bathing suit, he will go pp in his pants. Thankfully we've not had any poop accidents.

Something about being in the comfort of home makes him pp. He also stays dry at night most nights but he will wake up before me and go pp in his night time pull up before waking me up. At times (when wearing pull up or clothes) He just goes and I find out after, sometimes much later. Like, yesterday, he was outside with his older siblings and wet his pants. I had no idea until they came inside.

Is this just something he will outgrow or do I need to see a doctor?

Desiree LeBoeuf

18. März 2024

.

My son is 7 and has always had a "wedgie" problem with boxer briefs lol

Any tips? Tricks?

Maybe they're a little too loose? Too tight? Anyone else have had this issue? lol

Stephanie Mulhall

boxer briefs

2 Jahre

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

15. März 2024

.

Hello. Some advice please...

My 3 year old has been without nappies during the day for about 3 months now. At weekends and in the evenings he passes urine every 3/4 hours - about 40% of the time after being prompted but otherwise takes himself there. His nursery are concerned as he is refusing to use the toilet for the 8 hours that he is there every day. They have started putting nappies on him (no accidents) which im not too happy about. We are going to try taking his potty into the school. We constantly try and encourage him and have also tried some bribing. Im not too concerned as I think it would sort itself out in time but his headteacher is.

Isiah Brooks

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

I help u inbox me

2 Jahre

Antworten

Stephanie Mulhall

• Folgen

24. Januar 2021

My son is 3 1/2 fully potty trained for pee but constantly pooping in his pants. He holds it all day in school and then goes in his pants at home. We are over it don't know what to do. Do we let him sit in it or continue to clean him? It's something about pooping in the toilet that is scary to him for some reason. We have tried bribing and everything 🙄

Leigh Consilvio

Have you tried bringing s tablet or book and sitting with him on the toilet and telling him to take his time. Thats what we did and now its quick and easy.

5 Jahre

Antworten

Stephanie Mulhall

• Folgen

11. März 2024

Anyone have any tips on my 6.5yo son. Has been trained for years now only problem is if we don't get him up before we go to bed he wets the bed. Sometimes even before we get him up he wets the bed and sometimes we get him up and still he wets the bed in the morning. It's becoming so frustrating and i'm not sure i want him meds for this. Thoughts/comments? Please no judgements!

Stephanie Mulhall hat die Kommentarfunktion für diesen Beitrag deaktiviert.

Sarah Powell Gunter

My son will be 6 in 2 weeks and still wets the bed at night. He still wears pull ups to bed. I've talked to his pediatrician and she didn't seem too concerned. His dad wet the bed until he was 12 and a lot of my husbands side of the family were older bed wetters so I feel like genes may play a part here

2 Jahre

Lisa Craig

4. März 2024

Help with potty training a 2 year old he be 3 in may and has to be potty trained by his birthday or gets kicked out been working on it for a month or 2

Tanya Trelenberg

My youngest took a long time to really nail potty training. I don't have a ton of tips besides going nude and just taking to the potty every 20-30 mins during the day. Have a kid size potty out and available during play time. I rewarded with mini m&ms, 1 for pee and 2 for poop. That always made my boys excited.

2 Jahre

Antworten

Stacy Valley

5. März 2024

I have a bit of a unique (maybe not!) situation. My son (just turned 4) has been day-time trained (including naps) for over a year, except, he won't poop in the potty. He doesn't have accidents. He tells us that he needs to go, puts on a diaper, goes into the bathroom, poops, gets changed, and then goes back to underwear.

A few things... He pooped once on the potty when he was like 2.5/3 and cried the whole time. He is def afraid of pooping on the potty but can't really express why. He says it's "not how his poop comes out" (he wants to crouch). He is a regular pooper, every day, and around the same time of day. We aren't parents who "force" things and let the kids guide us, but he's capable of this and I think he needs a push...

So we moved to a sticker chart. Went to target, let him pick out the prizes etc. The rules are: either you're on the potty but have a diaper on and someone is in the bathroom with you so that we know you're sitting (he would go in and say he was sitting but would actually just be on the floor) or you go in without a diaper on (again, it's unlikely he'd go on the floor).

He does NOT want to be without the diaper. So we've been taking turns sitting with him. Each time we try different things... Book, video, music, bubbles, not looking, holding hands etc. And so far, no poop. He's literally holding it.

We're on day 3 of no poop. After sitting, he will say "oh I don't need to go anymore".

Other than advice for other things we can do or encouragement to stay on the path... How many days until I need to give in to the diaper? I had bowel issues as a kid and I don't want him to have the same thing! TIA!

Tanya Trelenberg

Do you guys have a step stool of some sort so his feet aren't dangling? I am like him, and I literally have a hard time using the toilet without a squatty potty. I would suggest trying something so he is encouraged to be in that squat/crouch position with his feet elevated a bit, and encourage him to lean forward slightly into his knees.

2 Jahre

Antworten

Camille Sena

3. März 2024

How do I yeah my son to intentionally poop in the toilet?!

I'll find him in a squat of some kind just about to poop. Run him to the bathroom just in time and then nothing (despite sitting there encouraging him to try and entertaining him for up to 15min) this On repeat for 3 hours before I miss catching the next occurrence and he poops his pants.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

Hey, I would keep him bare butt till you get 3 poops in the potty. Your words should be, "I can not allow the poop to go anywhere but the potty."

2 Jahre

Antworten

Joanna Flora

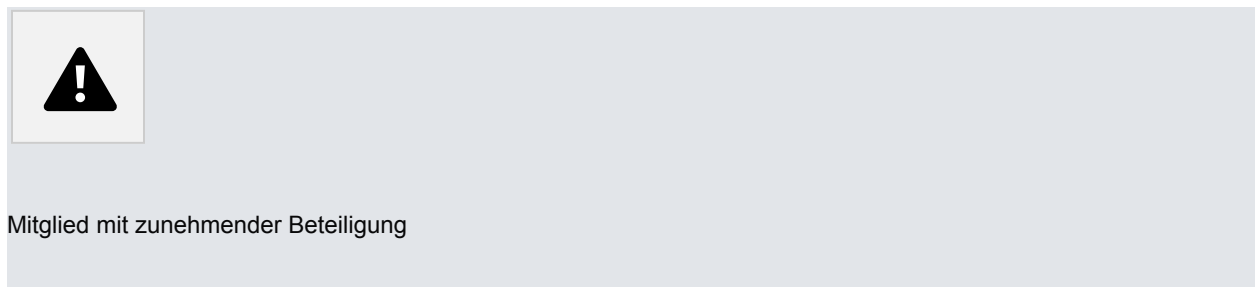

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

8. März 2024

Joanna Flora

4. März 2024

I will be doing a FREE live Training Wednesday at 1pm EST on Pooping 101:The Things NO ONE talks about!!! DM me for the link!

Joanna Flora

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

·26. Februar 2024

Happy Sunday!

I just created a FREE guide for anxious parents. PM me and I will send it over!

Bolaños Natalie

Please, send it to me too!

2 Jahre

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

6. Februar 2024

Night potty training-

Almost 3 year old (in a month) has been day trained since he was 2 Y 3M. Wondering if we should start with dry pull ups for naps or just dive right in with nap and night sleep training? We've already implemented the inverted triangle habit with liquids for many months. 75% of the time his nap pull ups are dry, but night diapers are still wet. Not reached, but wet.

Any guidance on when/where to start with be great.

He also goes to predchol 3 - days a week, so we'd need the skill to transfer and be practiced there. Thanks

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

21. Februar 2024

.

A client posted in my other group.

Success story!!! (Well ongoing!!) Huge thanks to Elizabeth Ann Epic for being such an incredible consultant. Not only has she guided my Husband and I through how to work through our sons withholding, she has been such an incredible blessing to me. Still working with her as we chose the unlimited package but we were majorly struggling with our 3.5 year old after a year of potty training due to Poop withholding. We didnt know about withholding until we were in too deep! It has been a major issue, but thanks to her, we have seen so much progress in under 3 weeks. Early days but seeing the light means everything to my childs confidence and to my mental wellbeing and things are moving in the right direction everyday!

If you are looking for support and in that place where you feel hope may be lost....its not!! Nothing I said shocked her and she knew exactly how to handle my situation!!! She is an absolute star! Things are turning around for my family in a big way and my only regret is not hiring her sooner!!

Joanna Flora

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

12. Februar 2024

.

Hey Momma's,

I have created a few FREE potty training charts, visual guides and cheat sheets. PM if you are interested in them and I can send them over.

Sh Law

I'm interested!

2 Jahre

Antworten

Joanna Flora

Mitglied mit zunehmender Beteiligung

·20. Februar 2024

FYI I am doing a FREE TRAINING: Parenting Hacks for Successful Potty Training! Wdensday 1pm EST if anyone is interested, Message me and I will send you the link!

Smriti Thakur Gupta

I'm interested!

2 Jahre

Antworten

Kayleigh Currie

12. Februar 2024

Can anyone help out a stressed put mumma?..

I have a 3.5 year who has never done anything in the potty or toilet. Tbh even getting him to sit on it is a battle. The very mention of it causes a meltdown. I have tried having him bottom half naked but he doesnt even have accidents he just holds it for hours. Has ended up with balanitis 3 times from holding onto pee. I really dont know how to go forward from here as he wont even try. Have tried sticker charts etc made no difference. Any help appreciated thanks

Anonymes Mitglied

15. Februar 2024

can anyone give me tips on how to potty train my boys theyre 2.5 years old and 14 months 😊 we have another on the way and not sure we wanna spend diapers on all three 😂 but its completely fine if we have too

Christina Fliakos

Big Little Feelings program worked the best for us after a couple failed attempts.

Essentially - day 1 naked, if all markers are met on day 1 go to phase 2. Phase 2 - commando. Phase 3 - short outings (as in driveway, yard, etc)

For me I think the BLF course taught me most about response and encouragement that I feel really helped my son progress.

We started at around 26 months, now. 32 months and doing fantastic. Rarely an accident here or there.

2 Jahre

Antworten

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

12. Februar 2024

.

Just posted in my other group. I love my job.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

10. Februar 2024

.

I am here if you need me. You are not alone. ♥♥♥

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

5. Februar 2024

.

Something I just posted in my other group.

Baruch Kushnir

31. Januar 2024

Overcoming Soiling and Withholding – A Case Study

Julia, 8.6 Years Old

During the initial meeting with Julia's parents at my clinic on February 5, 2019, they expressed concerns about their daughter's behavior. Julia demonstrated control over her urination both day and night but exhibited a pattern of soiling her underwear with bowel movements.

Her parents noted frequent instances of returning home from school with soiled clothing, which persisted into the afternoon and evening, indicating a pervasive issue. Interestingly, this problem arose approximately six months prior during a holiday trip, where Julia experienced distressing circumstances leading to persistent constipation. Despite medical consultations ruling out organic factors and a recommendation for stool softeners, her symptoms worsened, culminating in episodes of soiling. Engaging with a psychologist over several months revealed some progress in Julia's initiative to use the bathroom, highlighting her otherwise well-groomed demeanor, keen self-awareness, charisma, humor, and advanced language skills.

In response, I provided guidance to Julia's parents on implementing a disciplinary approach to address the issue.

Progress Update:

In a follow-up discussion with Julia's parents on February 17, 2019, approximately two weeks post-initial consultation, they reported positive results from implementing disciplinary measures. Julia responded well to the structured routine, maintaining cleanliness by adhering to designated bathroom times. She expressed satisfaction with the changes, even expressing a desire to meet with me personally.

By March 12, 2019, a month following the initial consultation, an uplifting meeting took place involving Julia and her parents at the clinic. Julia shared her profound sense of liberation from the issue and its transformative impact on various aspects of her life. Consequently, it was decided to suspend the enforcement of disciplinary rules.

On June 23, 2019, four and a half months post-initial consultation, Julia's mother reported sustained improvement, with the issue no longer dominating the family's concerns. Although Julia occasionally reflected on her accomplishment in overcoming the problem, it no longer posed a significant challenge.

For more information and resources:

<https://dr-b-kush>

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

27. Januar 2024

Is it just me or is there alot of unhelpful spam in this group?

Erin Wibben

25. Januar 2024

Hi! My husband and I just started potty training our second kid who is a boy. Any tips/suggestions would be great! He will be 2 in a couple days. Thanks!

Ksoosha Poradek

I started potty training my little guy a week after he turned 2. He did well for a bit. Then we regressed when I put him in pull ups. I finally just started again (5 months later) hard core. I took away the pulls up and put him in underwear and no pants and just a shirt. He tells me every time he needs to go and goes. I'm also reading the 3 day potty training book again!

2 Jahre

Antworten

Faaig mansoor official

24. Januar 2024

.

Faaig mansoor official

·Folgen

24. Januar 2024

.

I NEED SUPPORT MY ALL FRIENDS

[I LOVE MY ALL Friends]

Dakota Hammock

19. Januar 2024

We will keep our underwear clean and dry all day if we are home. But as soon as we leave the house he doesn't want to use the potty and will pee/poo in his underwear and not care until after when he is uncomfortable. Help.?! 😞😭

Lipika Banerjee

Does he have a favourite pair of socks or favourite pants that he may be motivated to keep dry? Sharing idea that sometimes works for my son.

2 Jahre

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

10. Januar 2024

Hello!

My nephew has been potty training for several months. He goes #1 and #2 when prompted but never communicates on his own. His parents tried reward system, keeping consistent schedule. When he comes from school, he is all wet. His teachers take him every hour and now the school is saying he should go back to diapers because teachers cannot leave every hour. According to them he should be potty trained by now. My nephew is 5 years old. He has some developmental delay. He is bright kid and verbal. Parents need advice. How do they get their son to communicate when he needs to go potty? When they ask, he always say no even though he really needs to go.

Also the family resides in London. Any resources to help? They talked to pediatrician. Same advice: keep trying..every child is different.

Morgan Moates Patterson

I don't have any advice for trying to get him to communicate his potty needs but I have a 4.5 year old and he has developmental delays. He's in school and they take him every hour, he's also on an IEP. I would look into something like that. I know potty training can be frustrating and exhausting but maybe his little brain hasn't figured out how to send the signals yet. My 4.5 year old is almost potty trained, still has a few accidents but I truly believe the only way to help him, is taking him every hour and until his brain is ready to make that connection.

2 Jahre

Antworten

Ashleigh Martin

13. Januar 2024

Is it ever too early to start potty training. My 21 month old has taken off his diaper on his own in the last month. He also has become more aware of when he is going number 1. He goes and hides when he's doing number 2. He also has interest in using the potty.

However, he's going through some other life changes and I want to be sensitive to that, and I know it's going to change our world entirely. But, I also don't want to wait too long.

ETA: he is in the 1's room at daycare, and I'm not sure yet if they will take him potty when he needs to go or if he would need to wait until he's in the 2's room. I know I need to ask.

Selena Frame

Never too early. He is at a great age to potty train!

2 Jahre

Antworten

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

13. Januar 2024

Does anyone have those washable rugs? I need more info. Can you vacuum them? Do they stay down? Feel nice?

Jessica Louise Eva Burke

I have a washable rug from dunelm. I wouldn't recommend buying it. Maybe a more expensive one would last . It gets so wrinkled n is now unravelling. But I suppose a normal rug would have been in the bin ages ago 🤔

2 Jahre

Antworten

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

13. Januar 2024

Wanna great live walkthrough the night training process, or have some personal questions answered? check out the comments.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

13. Januar 2024

I am doing another give away in My other potty training group for a free consultation. Link in comments.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

Verfasser/in

<https://m.facebook.com/groups/1340746009407003/?ref=share&mibextid=K8Wfd2>

Oh Crap! and more Potty-Training Support Group

Oh Crap! and more Potty-Training Support Group

2 Jahre

Antworten

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

12. Januar 2024

.

This was posted in my other group.

Day 3 of potty training consulting with Elizabeth Ann Epic and noticing a HUGE change in my toddler overall. I needed assistance in realizing where boundaries were and needed to be. My son would not sleep on his own without us, laying next to his bed, and him lay with us on the floor before then transferring to his bed. This is the very first night he's completely fallen asleep on his own! What's cool for me is that I don't have to get upset with my child. I could just pick up the phone and tell Elizabeth I feel like I'm going crazy lol. She has helped me so much in these past three days realize just how much I wasn't treating him like a human being. She's there every step of the way with potty training and listens to when I say hey I'm dealing with this or my son behaves this way like she tailors it to me and she's very receptive and that way I'm just so freaking happy that I have a whole 27 days left and I may not even need it. I don't think I'll need it Like the hard work has paid off tremendously already I felt so lost and now I have a good foundation not only potty training, but also sleeping by himself. Thank you so much Elizabeth!🙏🏻

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

11. Januar 2024

Checked my email this morning. I love potty training so much.

Hey Liz,

Firstly - effing THANK YOU!!! Since your consult, toilet training has seen such remarkable improvement. P took about a day to get used to the new routines we established and then for the next two days, self-initiated every wee and poop!!! AMAZING!! He is now also basically going like clockwork/peeing on demand at most of the non-negotiable times we've established, and when he isn't, he'll self-initiate and take himself. Just stunning 😊

Faaq mansoor official

11. Januar 2024

Faaig mansoor official

· Folgen

11. Januar 2024

.

Three brothers ❤️😄

#viralposts #peace #picturechallenge

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

10. Januar 2024

.

I am about to start a contest for a free 30 min consultation. Follow the link in comments.

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

Verfasser/in

<https://m.facebook.com/groups/1340746009407003/?ref=share&mibextid=K8Wfd2>

Oh Crap! and more Potty-Training Support Group

Oh Crap! and more Potty-Training Support Group

2 Jahre

Antworten

Helen Peters

10. Januar 2024

We started potty training my now three-year-old son in March 2023 so we are almost 10 months in at this point. Someone asked me right before Christmas how potty training was going and I told them that during the day we're pretty much potty trained. He goes when he needs to a lot of times without even telling us. He will poop and pee in the potty. He did great over the holidays. He did great at my in-laws. Great on the trip to my parents house which was several hours away and he did great out there. However, now all of a sudden we're having one to two accidents a day. What gives? Is this normal or why are we all of a sudden having accidents again?

Amy Neal Ingram

Start reminding him. Growth regressions happen. My son has been potty trained since Aug 2022 and I still give him reminders.....we set "go use the potty" before he starts fun activities, before we leave the house, before we have a snack, etc etc.

.....sometimes life's too fun and you forget, ya know?! 🙋🏻🤣

2 Jahre

Antworten

Amanda Mellor O'Connell

5. Januar 2024

My son will be 3 later this month and he is doing great with pee. He loves his big boy underwear and stays dry all day (sometimes even overnight). He seems to have gotten confused though, and won't poop at all. I don't mean he just won't poop in the potty - he won't poop AT ALL (not even in his pants or underwear or overnight diaper). He will go 4 days at a time holding his poop, even with tons of prune juice, and then just liquify/explode 🤢 Constipation was never an issue for him prior to potty training. Help!

Sarah Johnson

So sorry you are dealing with this. A lot of kids have a difficult time with the poop side of toileting. That being said, every child is different so it is hard to give advice without specifics. If you would like to have a conversation about this, message me or contact me on my site at Mindful Family Management

2 Jahre

Antworten

Ashley Eckhardt

5. Dezember 2023

HELP! My son will keep his underwear dry all day but has gone to pooping in his underwear when he was commando he would poop on the potty. How do i fix this? He understands the need to stay dry and says he knows he has to poop in the potty but doesn't.

Sarah Johnson

Elizabeth Ann Epic I am also a Toilet Learning Consultant and Coach and I whole heartedly sign off on everything Elizabeth put... Mehr anzeigen

2 Jahre

Antworten

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

5. Januar 2024

Not potty related but these are freaking adorable! I am so excited to invite my littles class to his b day party.

Shelly Correa

31. Januar 2020

Omggggg my 3 year old WILL NOT potty train for the life of him!!! We have accident after accident. He HATES the potty! I've tried everything! Bribery, Cheerios, sticker chart, everything! I need help!

Suyapa Sosa

My son is only 18 months but i sit him down and do everything to distract him so he can get used to it and its worked i can si... Mehr anzeigen

6 Jahre

Antworten

Anonymes Mitglied

1. Januar 2024

.

I would be so grateful for some help.

My son turned 4 in October and we are having another regression with his toileting, to the point where he's weeing and pooing on the floor and in his pants everyday. We are using rewards and praise but it's just not working. I have kept him naked from the waist down a couple of days to get him started too but he's not catching.

My mum says I've left it too late but I can't let him go back to p... Mehr anzeigen

Elizabeth Ann Epic-Hansen

I feel at this age and from what I read, it is not the little, something you are doing or not doing is creating these issues, ... Mehr anzeigen

2 Jahre

Antworten
Bearbeitet

Shelly Correa

8. November 2019

.

Ok mamas! I'm finally ready to take the leap and I need HELP! My son will be 3 in January. We wanted to start potty training as soon as he turned two and we had a few successful times in the beginning where my son sat on the potty.

He peed once in the potty and got excited. Then one day my husband flushed the toilet while he was sitting on it and it scared the ever loving shot out of my son and we haven't turned back since. Even the i... Mehr anzeigen

Sarah Whiddon

We started with the naked approach with my 3 year old. Naked from the waist down for about 4-5 days, getting to know his cues ... Mehr anzeigen

6 Jahre

Antworten

Shelly Correa

15. Februar 2020

My son (just turned 3) is pretty much 100% potty trained. We haven't ventured out in public without a pull-up yet but at home he hasn't had an accident in almost two weeks. My question is he pees sitting down. That's how we started since it just seemed easier for training since he could relax and not stand for long periods of time. Do we just keep letting him sit, or do we encourage standing, let him just figure it out...?

Heather Marie Gilmer

We let Logan sit until he was ready to stand. Now he goes back and forth. We let him go however he wants.